> Carter H. Harrison Carries the City by 20,000 Plurality.

Indications of a Sweeping Victory for the Republicans Throughout Kansas-Results of Various City Elections.

By Telegraph to The Times. CHICAGO, April 4. - [By the Associated Press.] Never in the history of Chicago has such interest been shown in any municipal election as in that which came off today. The campaign on both sides has been conducted with great bitterness. It was an open contest of the Republicans and citizens against

TO INVALIDS—A PLEASANT, PRIVATE home for one sick lady; attendance by professional nurse. Address W, TIMES 133 Harrison-more against him as an individual than as the representative of a political faction. The day was a Republican day, as far as the weather vent, it being perfect. Long before the polls opened, early in the morning, there were lines of men waiting a chance to cast their ballots, and by 9 o'clock there were great crowds of men at each polling place. By noon 70 per cent. of the registered vote had been cast. The general feeling of the day seemed to be in favor of Harrison's chances, and what betting was done was in his favor. THE AUSTRALIAN BALLOT. against which Harrison's popularity had never been measured, was inclined to make his loudest supporters a triffe cautious, and not a large amount of betting was done at any figure. The chances, too, that the old-time Democratic imajorities in the stockyards, where Allerton was very popular, would be largely cut, made another factor in the betting, and went a long way toward keeping down the amount of money wacered. The German population, which gered. The German population, which was confidently expected to go almost solidly against Harrison, proved a dis-appointment to both parties. It seems to have split between the two candidates and not to have proven as decisive a factor as it was in the election last November, when it went so heavily for Cleveland as to virtually settle the election last November when it went so heavily for Cleveland as to virtually settle the electoral vote of the State. WAITING FOR THE RETURNS.

By 5 o'clock, an hour after the polls closed, crowds began to congregate in front of the newspaper offices to await the returns. At the corner of Fifth avenue and Washington streets, the Times building, where Harrison's news-paper is published, there was a great sheet of canvas on which the returns were thrown by a stereopticon. Half a block to the south a similar canvas bore the returns of the Record, and half a block to the east the Herald gave its pews out. The two latter papers have been strongly anti-Harrison during the campaign, and the crowds which passed on the streets in front of their buildings partook strongly of their sentiments. There were many altercations between the partisans and many a bloody nose before the evening was over. The first returns began, strongly

IN FAVOR OF HARRISON, and his followers simply went wild. They jumped, yelled, threw hats in the blew tin horns and hired brass bands. The throng in the streets became so dense that several lines of treet cars were compelled to stop running until the police could force an opening for them. It was not as big an election as that of last November but it meant as much, or more, to Chi cago, and all Chicago was out tonight o see how it went.

Carter H. Harrison was elected Mayor of Chicago by 20,000 plurality over Samuel W. Allerton, the candidate on the Citizens' ticket. The entire Demo-cratic city ticket was also elected by NEW BAR-LOCK TYPEWRITERS for the for sale or rent on trial.

LONGLEY & WAGNER, First and Spring sts. about the same plurality. Cregier, or the Labor ticket, did not receive 8000 votes. The Democrats carried the West and South Side tickets, but the Repub-MRS. Returns Indicate a Sweeping Victory for the Republican KANSAS CITY, April 4 .- [By the Asso ciated Press. | The municipal elections throughout Kansas today have an unisual interest. The party lines be tween the Republicans and Populists are strictly drawn, and the results will go far to determine which party gained and lost public confidence in the recent struggle in the Legislature, and to set tle party supremacy in the State at the next State election. It will also decide whether woman suffrage will be extended to all elective offices, or the ac conferring suffrage upon them be abolished, according to the strength the women show at the polls. The registration of women is larger than ever before, and a large female vote is ex pected. The weather throughout the State is fine, which favors the Populists, most of whom live in the country and require good roads to bring then

They Secure the Offices of Mayor and Council, Sr. Louis, April 4 .- [By the Associated Press. | The election in this city oday resulted in a victory for the Republicans. They secured the Mayor, Collector, Council, and most of the ninor offices, if not all. Cyrus P. Walbridge secures the Mayoralty from James Bannerman by a majority of about 3000. Henry Ziegenheim, for Collector and Charles Nager for President of the Council (Reps.) defeated their Democratic opponents by still larger majorities. It is thought the Republicans will also secure every one of the six Councilmen and a major-ity of the House of Delegates. Returns are coming in much slower than was expected, and it will be very late before definite majorities can be

M. Dupuy Forms Another Cabinet for France-The Failure of an Australian Bank-Foreign Notes.

By Telegraph to The Times. BELFAST, April 4 .- [By Cable and Associated Press 1 The city and vicinity has the appearance of a general holi day. Railway trains brought thousands of people, and the streets are thronged with enthusiastic crowds, everybody wearing a badge in imitation of the union jack, signifying devotion to the union. At noon Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, the Marquis and Marchioness of the Mayoralty contest, there being five candidates in the field. W. H. Carlson, Mayor of Belfast, and other leading Unionists headed a monster procession of Orangemen and members of Unionist clubs, Odd Fellows and other organizations, which marched through the streets with the full regalia of their respective orders. The procession was followed by students from Dublin in gowns, and bands played British Unionst airs, while

THE GREAT MULTITUDE that lined the streets to the Botanic Gardens cheered with fierce enthusiasm as each noted character or well-known organization passed along. Balfour rode in a carriage bareheaded, con-stantly bowing in recognition of the greetings of the multitude. The bright, sunshiny weather, gayly decorated buildings and the mass of marching organizations, with the immense attend ance, all combined to make a most brilliant and impressive spectacle.

RECEPTION TO BALFOUR .. The enthusiasm of the day's demon stration culminated in the reception to Mr. Balfour, when he appeared before the mass-meeting. When he rose to speak he stood for five minutes waiting for the uproar to cease. After touching on the history of Ulster and praising the loyalty, tenacity and bravery of the men of Ulster, he analyzed the Home Rule Bill. He devoted considerable attention to the probable effect the bill, if passed, would have upon the protestation of Ireland. He prayed to God that Irish Loyalists would not be compelled to fight for their rights. He believed such a calamity would be averted, yet the tyranny of majorities might be found to be as bad as the tyranny of kings.

CANADA'S FUTURE.

Ex-Premier Mercier Espouses the Cause of Independence.

He Thinks Confederation Hostile to the French Element-Political Union With the United States or Independence.

By Telegraph to The Times. MONTREAL (Quebec,) April 4 .- [By the Associated Press. | Ex-Premier Mercier of Quebec spoke here tonight on the future of Canada. He is now seeking to rehabilitate himself by espousing the cause of Canadian independence, and tonight made the opening speech of his campaign. In the course of his address, Mercier said: "I do not need to say I propose to deal with my subject freely, and without fear and without feebleness, but also without hatred toward England, and with all the respect that is due one of the greatest nations on the globe. On the whole, we, owe nothing to England, and we may separate ourselves from her when a majority constitutionally decides to do so, without any pangs of conscience, and without any shedding of tears." As to confederation, he declared the scheme framed in a spirit hostile to the French element. As to the great ques-tion before them, Mercler said the Canadian people had arrived at the stage when they must make up their minds as to what the future is going to be-a continuation of the statu quo, political union with the United States or inde-pendence. "If we continue in our colonial condition," he said, "we recede; if we break the colonial tie, we will advance."

As to political union with the United States Mercier said: "For many people the immediate entrance of Canada into the American Union is the only solution to the problem the future of Canada presents. While I respect this opinion, I do not share it. Nevertheless, as political union may become the ultimate end of our destiny, it necessarily has its place in the study of the ques-That in certain union would be of advantage to us is incontestable. Mercier pointed out that political union with the United States would have the effect of removing Canada's enor-mous public debt, improving the credit of its industrial companies, reducing the cost of the administration of the government and increasing the influence of French Canadians as a race by at taching them more strongly to the millions of French Canadians now in the United States. "But, despite all the natural and other advantages which would follow from a political union, for independence the four leading reasons From necessity, from patriotism. are: owing to natural advantages of independence, and because we are capable of existing as an independent people,' Mercier claimed that independence would be necessary before a political union with the United States could be accomplished, even if it is desirable.

BERING SEA

Court of Arbitration Assembled in Paris.

Sir Henry Elliott's Report on the Question Asked for.

Ex-Secretary Foster Explains the Mistranslation Stories.

The Erroneously Translated Documents Were Withdrawn by the United States as Soon as the Errors Were Discovered.

By Telegraph to The Times. Paris, April 4.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] The Bering Sea court of arbitration assembled today. Many American ladies were among the audience. Sir Charles Russell, of the counsel for Great Britain, moved that Campbell furnish the court a copy of the report of Sir Henry Elliott on the Bering Sea question. The motion was supported by Webster, also of the British counsel, and opposed by Phelps and Carter of the counsel for the United States. Mr. Phelps said in his argument that the United States communicated the original report in February.

Mr. Carter contended that the United States was justified in refusing to produce the report asked for, but would produce it in order to remove the causes of British caviling. Sir Charles Russell then demanded the production of the Elliott report, basing his application on article 4 of the treaty of arbitration. Mr. Phelps, in behalf of the United States, denied the report was referred to in the American case. He said it was simply referred to in the counter case. to which acticle 4 of the treaty did not refer. Phelps further denied that it was admissible in law that one party should have power to force an adver-sary to produce any document simply because the adversary desired to use it in evidence. The refusal of the United States to produce the document was not due to any desire to suppress the re-port, but to the fact that it was applied for too late for the American G ment to prepare its answer to the arguments that might possibly be based upon it. Nevertheless, he would pro-duce the report, as he did not wish to engender the suspicion of a desire to suppress evidence, but, after this con-cession, he would decline to produce any further evidence.

After recess Mr. Carter submitted for consideration a motion that the tribunal dismiss from arbitration so much of En-gland's demand as relates to America, and contained in chapter 19, page 815. of the British counter case, referring to expenditures for Supreme Court proexpenditures for Supreme Court pro-ceedings. The motion contemplated, also, the dismissal of the clause concerning pelagic sealers.

Mr. Phelps moved the rejection of the report of the Bering Sea Commission put in evidence at the first meeting of the arbitrators. His address was still unfinished when the commission adjourned until tomorrow. Ex-Secretary of State Foster, the American agent of the Bering Sea court of arbitration, was questioned today in regard to the erroneous trans-lation of certain Russian documents represented to have been used to uphold the American case. Foster said the errors of translation had been dis-covered by the United States Government and the erroneously translated documents withdrawn, along with the aruments based guments based upon them, and the British government informed of the facts. The insinuations of the British newspapers were, therefore, utterly unfounded and unworthy of attention.

By Telegraph to The Times. WASHINGTON, April 4 .-- | By the Associated Press.] It has been decided by Secretary Gresham to examine more thoroughly than has been customary into the personnel of the State Department, with a view, it is understood, of determining the fitness of employes for the positions held by them. It is reported, and on good authority, that 'tradition' and "precedent" will not obtain in the State Department during the incumbency of Secretary Gresham, and that there will be less red tape and a greater dispatch of business here-

Secretary Smith has already begun to carry into effect his policy of dispensing with the services of all incompetent clerks in his department or those appointed purely for political reasons Under the direction of Chief Clerk Wardle, the individual records of the clerical force of the Census Office is being thoroughly examined, and all clerks found to be deficient will be dismissed. Twenty-nine clerks were dropped from the rolls today and others are likely to

It is Secretary Smith's belief that the work or the census should be completed by the end of the calendar year, without asking an additional appropriation from Congress, but to do this he is con-vinced there must be not only economy in the expenditures, but each employ must do good and efficient work. It is understood, also, that the clerical force in the General Land Office will soon undergo a precess of renovation, after which some attention will be given to the pension and other bureaus, with a view to putting them on a strictly busi-

The United States Gains Land by the Resurvey of the Southern Boundary Line-Attempt to Blow Up a Tug.

Bu Telegraph to The Times. Lompoc, April 4.—[By the Associated Press.] The news reached Point Concepcion Lighthouse yesterday that the four-masted steel ship King James, coal laden, from Newcastle, England, to San Francisco, had been burned at sea. 200 miles off San Francisco. Yesterday a boat containing sixteen men from the King James landed at Point Concepcion Lighthouse, where they were cared for by the lighthouse keeper.

On March 19 vapor was discovered issuing from the hold of the King James, and the hold gradually grew hotter. Water was poured down the hatchways, but without avail. For eleven days and nights the crew fought the fire, but on March 80 a terrific explosion tore up the deck in all directions. The flames shot up high in the air, and the crew were forced to take to the boats. They remained near the ship until March 31, when they started for Point Concepcion.

The crew, thirty-two in all, occupied two boats. The captain took thirteen men, two apprentices and his sixteen-year-old son, and the first mate, two apprentices and thirteen men filled the other boat. Point Concepcion was 250 miles away, and the boats started for that point. On April 1 a gale came up and separated the boats. The mate' boat arrived at Point Concepcion safely yesterday, but nothing has been seen of the other. Those in the captain's of the other. Those in the captain's boat were Capt. W. Drummond and son, Second Mate David Ireland, Edward Flynn, James Christie, John Perry, Alvin Robertson, William Seaman, Harry Bruce, Peter Peterson, Christie Larcen, Frank Keeyon, Steven Brezon, John Williams, F. Muller, and two others, names unknown. The captain's boat is expected to appear soon, and a close watch is being kept for her. This was the first trip of the King James.

The tugs Vigilant and Monarch left today in search of the burning ship King James and her crew. The big tug Fearless will go out after her tonight.

Santa Barbara, April 4.—Up to 8 o'clock tonight nothing further had been heard from Lompoc or Point Concepcion regarding the landing of the mate and fifteen members of the crew of the ship King James. Nothing has been heard yet from the cantain's heat been heard yet from the captain's boat A telegram from British Vice-Consul Mortimer at Los Angeles says that the men who landed at Point Concepcion vesterday will reach Santa Barbara fter midnight tonight on the steame Los Angeles.

Pittsburgh Responds to an Appeal for Help-An Incendiary Fire Causes $250,000 Damage in Cumberland, Md.

By Telegraph to The Times. PITTSBURGH, April 4. - [By the Asso ciated Press.] Fire broke out shortly after 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the warehouse of the Godfrey & Clark Paper Company, on South Canal street, Allegheny. Owing to a high gale which was blowing, the flames communicated rapidly to the malt house of the Ebergardt & Ober Brewing Company. Pittsburgh was appealed to for aid, but, notwithstanding the additional force, the large grain elevator of the Ebergardt & Ober Company was soon on fire. Sparks started blazes in Cupp & Freckley's lumber yards. The firemen bent all their energies to preventing the fire spreading and shortly after 6 c'clock the ing, and shortly after 6 o'clock the flames were under control. The God-frey & Clark and the Ebergardt & Ober companies' losses, however, are great. The former's loss is $50,000, on which there is $46,000 insurance. The brewing company's loss on buildings and stock is $200,000, insurance $80,000. The other losses are: Cupp & Freck-ley, $5000, with no insurance; Heinz Pickle Company, $2500, insured; on dwellings, $5000; partially insured. Two Pittsburgh firemen were injured by falling walls; but mether seriously.

A BLAZE IN CUMBERLAND, MD. CUMBERLAND (Md.,) April 4 .- A few inutes after 6 o'clock this evening a fire, supposed to be incendiary, was discovered in a stable in the very heart of the city. The wind was blowing a gale, and the rear of the block was soon a mass of flames, and a wholesale con-flagration seemed certain. After six hours of hard struggle the fire was finally gotten under control, having consumed in all fifteen places of busi-ness, a boarding-house and restaurant and several dwelling houses. While the fire was at its height, another blaze was started by the careless dropping of a lighted match in a frame structure in the southern portion of the city. Twelve buildings were completely destroyed before this second fire was subdued. As nearly as can be esti-mated the total loss will foot up

SAINT AND SINNER.

Mormons and Gentiles Journey to Salt Lake City.

Immense Crowds Will Witness the Dedication Ceremonies.

Entrance to the Temple. The Beginning of the Semi-annual Con ference of the Mormon Church-

It Will Require a Ticket to Gain

An Outline of the Programme,

By Telegraph to The Times. SALT LAKE CITY, April 4.—[By the Associated Press.] The semi-annual conference of the Mormon Church began today. The dedicatory ceremonies of the temple begin April 6 and run to April 18, inclusive. The programme is to admit about 2150 daily, that being the seating capacity of the main room of the temple. The presidency has issued public notice of this. A notice designating the "states" of Mormondom where from the saints will be admitted, from day to day, has been issued. On April 6 in the afternoon, it is announced, 25 will be admitted from Alberta State, British Columbia; 38 from Snowflake, Ariz.; 20 from St. Johns, Ariz.; 22 from Maricopa, Ariz.; 380 from Bannock, Idaho; 25 from San Juan, Utah; 175 from Cassia, Idaho; 223 from St. George, Utah; 200 from Panguitch, Utah; 240 from Em-ery, Utah; 100 from Parowin, Utah; 130 from Beaver, Utah; 178 from Uin-tah, Utah; 375 from Malad, Idaho, and the Salt Lake City chair of 50 making the Salt Lake City choir of 50, making a total of 2146.

All the places are to be applied for and admission will be strictly on tickets supplied on the recommendations of the bishops of the states, stating the applicant is in good standing and has paid all tithing accounts, etc. The gates through which all may pass are speci-fied. The above list is but a sample of ned. The above list is but a sample of the allotments for the forencons of thirteen days. All the states will be gone through in a like manner. In the bigger states larger numbers will be allowed, thus Salt Lake gets in on eleven days to the number in all of 18, 750. The total numbor to pass in during the different days is 50,656. It is supposed the ceremonies from squad to squad will be semi-daily repetitions so that all can see the same things and hear the same songs and discourses The temple was crowded this morning at the prelimenary exercises. The services opened with the hymn "Come, let us anew our journey pursue," which was rendered by a choir of 400 voices and the assembled saints and the organ.

Apostle F. U. Lyman offered the opening prayer.

President Woodruff, Presidential counselors George A. Cannon and Joseph F. Smith, and all the twelve apostles except one were present.

President Woodruff spoke, thanking God for the privilege of thanking 10,000 saints for their prayers that the hopes and prophecies might be fulfilled.

Cannon followed, recounting the vicissitudes of the church. The city is crowded with saints from every point of the compass. Fully 30,000 will attend the dedicatory services on Thursday. They have jour-neyed from Canada, Mexico, Europe and the islands of the Pacific.

The great temple, which was forty years in building, is a marvel of architecture. Thousands of tourists are coming into the city. It is estimated 60,000 visitors will witness the dedicatory ceremonies.

At the afternoon session of the conference of Latter day Saints, Presidential Counsellor Joseph F. Smith addressed the conference at considerable length on a subject pertaining to the spiritual welfare of the Latter day Saints. Lorenzo Snow advised the saints not to expect too much on the opening of the conference on Thursday. He said Christ would not come until the saints were prepared to receive him properly, and that might be ten or twelve or twenty years.

A LITTLE SHAKE

A Slight Shock of Earthquake Causes Commotion at Various Points. A short, sharp and somewhat sudden remor of the surface of terra firma was felt hereabouts at 11:45 o'clock yesterday morning.
Although there were many who did not feel it at all, and at first thought it a joke on the part of those who told them their experience, to others it was even to a degree painful. Those who were in the upper stories of high buildings at the time, and those who chanced to be sitting in compara-tively quiet places felt it most percept-Some of the young ladies of the pub-lic library felt the shock quite severely. Two or three of them, who were in the tower-room, one flight above, at the time, were badly frightened and ran below to where the others were grouped brought about at Wagner's jewelry store on Spring street. One of the plate-glass windows was cracked horizontally across its middle and several clocks were stopped. Mr. Wagner, who was in the store at the time, thought that an iron safe must have fallen on the floor above.

The young ladies who were eating their luncheon in the upper room in the First Presbyterian Church were badly scared, the windows and doors there being considerably shaken.

T. B. Glover, who is employed in one of the United States Army offices in the Bryson building, on the fifth floor, experienced sickness which lasted for nearly half an hour. The occupants of the various rooms there rushed to the hallways, and several of them were more or less sick.

The experience of those who were on the upper floors of the Phillips Block was much the same, and some of them were much frightened. were much frightened. At the Courthouse the shock was very perceptible. The chandeliers vibrated violently, and in Judge Clark's department the ceiling was badly cracked.

The shock was also felt at Pasadena. Porsona, Santa Ana, Santa Barbara and La Cañada, but, so far as known, no damage resulted at any point beyond the breaking of a little crockery.

will arrive from Sacramento this morn-Mr. Borchers was formerly n the profession, but took to up in the profession, but took to con-vivial habits and retired from the ball field for a while. He has married and settled down and is now said to be a model man. Capt. Glenalvin expects to put him in the box this afternoon.

Uncle Harris and his team of hard-itters, as he delights to call them, will arrive today, and cross bats with the Angels for the first time this season. The series will begin this after-noon, and continue up to and including next Sunday. It is not yet known who Uncle will put in the box today, but it is supposed he will utilize Mr. Balsz.
Today's game will begin at 2:30 p.m. sharp. Ball games, unlike theatrical performances, begin promptly at the advertised time.
Capt. Glenalvin confidently expects to win at least three out of the five to win at least three out of the five games with the 'Friscos. The Angels wiped up the Stocktons and Finn's team made inroads on Uncle's record.

So it is reasonable to suppose that Glen is not talking through his hat.

The voluble, though not altogether delectable, "Tip" O'Neal will not be on the grounds this afternoon, having departed for the North with his royal master, the Colonel. The game therefore promises to be an uninterrupted one.

The San Francisco Chronicle says the weights to his feet to keep him down when he gets back to Oakland with those five straight games in his pocket. The same paper also has this item: "Los Angeles in last place is a new sensation for the Angels, but the Colonel Glenalvin is a hustler, and doubtless making arrangements to sprout new plumage. He has taken G. Cobb into the fold as a starter. Cobb is now an ex-National Leaguer, and ought to be a reat man."

The San Francisce Post in summarizing last week's games, comments as follows: "The close of the first full week of the season finds the Los Angeles club, which was proclaimed the strongest in the league, at the end of the pro-cession. The Southern team lost five cession. The Southern team lost live straight games to the Colonels last week, and, although the Los Angeles men played good games in the field, they were out-classed at bat. Robin-son's team at first was believed to excel in fielding only, but during the recent series the fact was developed that the Colonels are probably made up of the hardest hitters in the league. The Oaklands had been facing two strong pitchers during the week, and in all the contests sized up the opposing twirlers for a large number of base hits. Yesterday Capt. Glenalvin put in the box George Cobb, formerly of the San Fran-cisco team, and who was with the caltimore team last year. Cobb pitched good ball, but Oakland won by a score of 1 to 0."

A Sad Case,

Yesterday afternoon a young Mexican girl, who said she was less than 18 years of age, called at the police sta-tion to enter complaint against a dep-nty constable, who she said had seduced her. The man, she states, is married, and refuses to do anything for her. She refused to swear out a complaint against the man. The police are investigating the case, and if the facts are as alleged, an effort will be made to punish the man.

A Hilarious Deaf Mut

Edgar Bond, the deaf and dumb man was again brought to the police station last night and booked for medical treatment. As a matter of fact, the man is in the habit of indulging in frequent and hilarious sprees, generally ending up by being bruised sufficiently to en-title him to be listed among those under the surgeon's care. Twenty-five dollars in coin was found in his pockets.

THE SUNDAY LAW. The Saloon Men Will Fight Against Its Enforcement.

But one of the defendants in the vio lation of Sunday closing saloon ordinance cases pleaded guilty yesterday to the charge when several of the many cases were taken up in the Police Court. Ever since the ordinance was put into effect it has been an open secret that while the front doors of the saloons were closed on that day, in the ma-jority of cases an open back or side en-trance could be found without much difficulty. Last Sunday the police decided to see that the law was enforced, and sent out a number of officers dressed in citizens' clothes to attempt to purchase liquor in the drinking-places. As a result, a number of war-rants were issued, and twelve arrests were made on the charge before 7 o clock on Monday night. The cases will be contested vigorously, and it is claimed that there may be some sensational developments. It was reported yesterday that the Liquor Dealers' As-sociation had held a meeting and had mapped out a plan of campaign.

So long as the two principal orange-growing belts were pulling separately and by jerks, like a span of balky horses.

there was little hope of obtaining any very lasting or satisfactory results.

For a long time the Riverside growers labored under the impression that they could stand alone; but a couple of seasons of demoralization in the Eastern markets has taught them their grievous error.

They are now ready to come forward as earnest advocates of cooperation throughout the whole of Southern California, and we think that other producers are willing to let by-gones be

The plan of organization proposed by Mr. Chamberlin of Riverside, and in dorsed by the meeting, is one that was started in Riverside a couple of years ago and has worked successfully. It originated as a mere working arrangement between a few neighbors. They pooled their issues, packed and sold their fruit on the cooperative plan under a single brand, and divided the proceeds pro-rata in proportion to the quantity of each kind of fruit which the various members supplied. The organization set its face like a flint against shipping on commission, and brought its transac tions all to the basis of f.o. b. sales. There

It is proposed now to establish local organizations in each section. Six or eight or even a dozen such associations may be formed in Los Angeles county, and perhaps as many more in San Bernardino county, while two more will be needed in Orange county. Neighbors

When these organizations are well formed, it will no doubt be advisable to establish a central board of manage ment, which will have certain advisory, or even mandatory, powers. This central board should have daily telegraphic advices of the state of the market during the season, and communicate this intelligence on request to the local organizations. The general board should also keep a careful record of all shipments, and do all in its power to prevent the glutting of any particular market. When it is once settled that there will be no wild shipments on commission Eastern buyers will feel much safer in making out-and-out purchases and many of them will be glad to do so.

The main idea of organization is, not to form a trust of the producers, or to exact unreasonable prices, but to see that the law of supply and demand is not ruthlessly violated, and by this means bring about a healthy tone to the market and secure prices that will

It is calculated that a general plan of cooperation, such as here outlined, would save to the growers of Riverside than $250,000 annually. This money now goes into the hands of middlemen who make their own terms and conditions in performing these services. If,

THE TIMES READY-REFERENCE SHEET.

A convenient and useful thing, not only to strangers and tourists, but to citizens of Los Angeles, would be a READY-REFERENCE SHEET of popular local information, giving the names and location of the chief transportation lines, the leading hotels, churches, public buildings, secret societies, boardinghouses, restaurants, suburban resorts, livery stables, banks, real-estate and insurance agents, attorneys, physicians, etc.

Such a sheet THE TIMES is preparing to put out. It will contain, besides the above lines of information, a long list of business cards, making it particularly useful to business men.

THE READY-REFERENCE SHEET, occupying a page of THE TIMES, will run through a full edition of 15,000 copies of the paper, and be printed, besides, on a large number of card sheets for special circulation and permanent posting.

An agent will call upon business men, explain details and give prices. Full information can also be had at this office.

PARK THEATER-Little Lord Fauntleroy

THERE was a slight tremor of earthquake yesterday afternoon, just to remind people that it is hard for a country to throw off its old habits. But it was a mild affair after all, and we can let it go as a harmless idiosyncracy.

THERE are 5000 applicants for office in the Eighth Virginia District, so Congressman Meredith says. As the district cast but 17,000 Democratic votes at the last election, the amount of destitution in that section of Virginia must be appalling.

Ex-Secretary Whitney is going to retire from active business in the course of a few months. It is understood that he will immediately engage in the active business of pushing his Presidential boom for 1896. Senator Hill will have to get up early in the morning if he expects to head off that man Whitney.

CLARK-HOWELL, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, has been in Washington on a tour of investigation, and finds that there are but 300 Georgia officeseekers in the city, instead of 900, as currently reported in the press. A very fair quota, nevertheless. If every State were as numerously represented, there would be 13,200 place-hunters howling at Mr. Cleveland's door.

It must be acknowledged that Michigan has turned a creditable somersault in giving a sweeping vicory to the about the same can work together to Republicans in the election of a the best advantage. They can manage judge of the Supreme Court, university regents and school commission- suit themselves, with the common uners. This is the beginning of a reaction which will probably be felt the consignment system, and stand for throughout all of the Northern States cash sales or the nearest approximation during the next four years. The dis- thereto. satisfied element in the Republican party has satisfied its pique and will now swing into line again.

Now THAT the Consolidated Electric Railway Company is before the city government in the attitude of an applicant for further franchises, we think it is in order to suggest that certain concessions in the way of transfers should be demanded. These transfers should not be left to the caprice of the company, to be extended or withdrawn as suits its pleasure, but should be in the nature of a contract between the city and the company. We should have an assurance that the system of transfers on the Second street line will be maintained as at present, and that transfers to the Temple street line as inaugurated at the beginning of the year be restored. The city in bestowing these franchises is parting with a valuable privilege-a privilege which in some cities commands a large money consideration. It is not too much to ask that, in lieu of a cash bonus, certain permanent concessions be granted to the public. We hope that the Board of Public Works will take this idea into consideration in passing upon the application of the electric company.

THE Chamber of Commerce and its auxiliary bureau of information have prepared a general circular to be sent to seekers after information, in which they embody the following sensible paragraph:

We do not desire-for reasons which will readily suggest themselves to you-to offer advice or suggestion as to the particular part of Southern California where you had best settle. Neither have we any lists of property for sale, nor can we advise you as to the merits of any particular piece of property. We would suggest, however, as one of the best methods of informing yourself the best methods of informing yourself on all such matters, that you subscribe for a time to one of the daily papers of this section and study the advertise-ments. The leading dealers in realty all take this method of making known what they have to dispose of. Inquiry made by letter to these advertisers will probably bring you an immediate an-wer.

Then follows a list of the principal apers of Southern California. This is practical way of meeting many in quirles which could not be answered atlafactorily by a whole literary bureau kept constantly employed in formulating specific information.

movement. With a small percentage holding aloof and shipping at random markets may be demoralized and prices reduced below the point of remuner ation. It is to the advantage of all to help establish a system which will maintain the industry on a fairly profitable basis. It is none too soon to begin this work of organization now in anticipation of marketing next season's crop. A great deal of missionary work will have to be done to overcome prejudices, and elaborate cooperative plans must be formulated to the satisfaction of all. It goes without saving that, in a general system such as contemplated, there must be no favoritism as between different localities. Each must stand upon its own merits so far as the quality of fruit is concerned, and each must have a fair chance to market its product. The one evil above all others to be obviated is to prevent overcompetition in any market.

To this end we hope the orangegrowers of Southern California will have the good sense to bend their The meeting of represenative orangeunited efforts.

THE shooting of W. J. Metcalf, "a prominent citizen" of Jonesboro, Ark., while leading a White Cap raid, shows how the virus of outlawry has taken hold of many people in the extreme ticularly agreeable to the producers of Southern States who are ranked among the "best citizens." The object of this demonstration of the White Caps was to prevent a man from leasing his own land to a negro; and it was successful, for the would-be offender was killed, as well as the leader of the outlaws.

> A SPIRITUALISTIC Cassandra has arisen Chicago who predicts for that illfated city four calamities: First, that Carter Harrison is to be elected Mayor second, that there will be two bloody riots before snow flies: third, that two tornadoes will sweep the city; and, fourth, that there is to be a visitation of cholera. All of which, we should say, will be pretty tough on the White City.

THE only Chinaman in Connecticut who has taken the trouble to register under the Geary law is Robert Spicer, who was brought to this country forty years ago, and doesn't know his Chinese name or observe any of the customs of the race. Registration was hardly necessary in his case, but having become a good Melican man, he did not propose to run any risk of banishment.

ABOUT OUR COUNTY BURDENS, To the Editor of The Times: Our County Auditor, at the conclusion of his last an nual report, expresses a willingness to im-part "information not included in this re-port" on application. I<sup>C</sup> respectfully beg permission to interrogate him, through you, for light upon one or two items of county expenditures for the year 1892. On page 18 of his report are two items, ag-gregating $3496.70, for commissions and expenses "for collecting money from the State for indigents in Los Angeles county over 60 years of age!" In the receipts, the amount received from the State for said indigents, the sum is entered as $32,482.41 Now, the sweating taxpayers wish to kno the why and wherefore of the large ex penditure to collect from a solvent State sum of money duly appropriated for ou use.

Again, on page 11 of said report, there is a pay-out of $1676.07 for expenses and transportation of funds to and from Sacratransportation of funds to and from Sacra mento. The sum paid to the State wa $370,600. Deducting therefrom $295, 199 received from the State, and we had balance of $75,400 to transmit. Now, is view of the fact that a county officer coulmake the trip to Sacramento and return for $50, why was this large sum paid for ransporting funds? It could have been transmitted for half the money by tele graph, even, and telegraph rates are sup posed to be higher than bank rates and express charges.

And, while the Auditor is telling us how it is, will he also explain the $128.45 ex. penditure for "destroying decayed fish at Wilmington!" A TOILER.

Interesting Talk by Prof. Ira More, of the Normal School.

The Duties of a Teacher With Regar to His Profession" Defined-Lecture by Prof. Elmer E. Brown, of Berkeley-The Sections

The out-of-town teachers were largely einforced by city teachers yesterday afternoon at the general session of the County Institute, and the assemblyroom was filled when Prof. Ira More took his place on the rostrum to talk about "The Duties of a Teacher With Regard to His Profession."

"A person who follows a profession, said the veteran Normal School superintendent, "works largely with his brain; a person who has a trade per forms manual labor; that's the differ ence between a profession and a trade. A teacher must have a skilled brain to be successful, for it is, in reality, a double profession, working not only with his own brain but upon the brains of others. Teachers should not be made a stepping-stone to other professions. It used to be a common thing for a young man fit-ting himself for the profession of medicine, law or theology to teach school in order to get money to pursue his profession. When teaching is recognized in that way it is not a profession, but merely a trade. The times have largely changed in that direction, and the number of teachers now teaching in Los Angeles county as a trade could be work, but require teachers specially fitted for the work and permanent in it. "There are some things we must do in order to hold up our profession. First, we must go into it as into our life work; otherwise we wrong the profes-sion. The teacher must devote himself sion. The teacher must devote himself to his work. Some think they have done their duty if they spend five or six hours daily in the schoolroom, some-times doing more work outside during the balance of the twenty-four hours carrying a church on their shoulders being superintendent of a Sunday school or joining some one of the hundred and one societies, and putting their soul right into that. They then do a little perfunctory work in the school during the five or six hours required, and consider their duty done.

"A teacher should progress, and not keep on the same level year after year. If he does good work, and is a success in all respects, the world will realize it. As Prof. Jordan said last night, the crowd is always at the bottom-there's room enough higher up, and as you get along toward the head you will find no crowd at all. There are more places than there are people to fill them. Don't try to get a position through the influence of relatives or members of the Board of Education. It is not neces-Simply fit yourself for the best called into that work without much effort on your part."

This excellent address from Prof.
More was followed by another on "The Use of the Story in Education," by Elmer E. Brown, professor of pedagogy at Berkeley. Previous to his address on this topic, he called the attention of the teachers to an experiment now be ing undertaken in San Mateo, Marin, Sonoma and San Diego counties, whereby all the teachers will previously prepare themselves for general discussion on definite topics at the institutes Circulars have been issued outlining the work of preparation, and it is believed that much better work will be accom-plished to have common ground to work upon—something in detail, and let all the teachers take an active par in the discussions and exchange of ideas instead of confining the address to a corps of three or four instructors.
With this preliminary Mr. Brown introduced his talk, and for half an hour held the close attention of the teachers. Last evening he gave the first of a series of three lectures under the auspices of the teachers of the city schools, the county teachers attending as invited guests. His topic was: "What are the First Requirements of Good Teaching?' He then passed among the audience copies of a proof-sheet in which sug-gestions to the teacher, regarding the fundamental parts of his work, were given, and invited criticism. Some dis-

A PIONEER TEACHER John C. Pelton, the father of the pubic school system of California, is present at the institute. He brings him his book, "Life's Sunbeams and Shadows," just published. It is a hand-somely-bound, well-printed volume of poetry and prose, its bits of verse full poetry and prose, its bits of verse full of the music of rythmical expression, sweet and tender, showing the genuine spirit of the man who has not been emittered by hard fortune, but still has hope and courage in his brave sou. Many California poets have also contributed to the volume, and Frank M. nificent public school system which is the pride of all Californians. Now, he is old and feeble and in reduced circumstances, physical infirmities quickly following business reverses. By the sale of this book he hopes to realize enough to provide for the wants of himself and family and no worthier appeal was ever made to the public. The subscription price of the book is $2 and doubtless it will meet with a generous response by fellow-teachers and other friends of education, lovers of the public school system and patrons of literature, who will thus contribute somewhat to lighten the burdens from the infirm shoulders of a penniless author and educator, who, years ago, implanted in the minds of many of our best citizens those habits of thrift which have enabled them to amass millifens.

STOCKTON STIRRED UP.

The Feeling Over Rev. Ellsworth's Sermon on Dancing.

Mass-meeting at Which the Preache Was Roundly Denounced-The Minister's Talk to a San Francisco Newspaper Reporter.

Stockton is still stirred up over the sensational sermon of Psalm-singer Ellsworth, preached in that city recently, an account of which was pubin THEOTIMES Monday morning. A special dispatch from Stockton to the San Francisco Chronicle of Monday

Some of the local ministers manifest an intention to back up Psalm-singer Ells-worth in his denunciation of dancing and women who dance. One of them is reported to have gone so far as to say that the attack on Ellsworth was fathered by members of the local 400, who visited the disorderly houses and were received with open arms by society. This has added to the excitement and indignation. Ellsworth, on his part, took precautions to leave for San Francisco on an early train, saying that the Lord's work called him.

An indignation meeting at Mozart Hall last night was attended by 1000 men.
Women were not permitted in the hall, but good order prevailed. Dr. Thomas presided. The report of Rev. Ellsworth's slipping away was received with a howl Most of the speakers deprecated violence and hoped that none but gentlemant means would be taken to avenge the insult heaped upon the women of Stockton. The hope was expressed that the meeting would be the death knell of the sensational sermon in Stockton and would teach preachers that business men who pay the expenses of churches do not propose to tol-era e any min's er who says balls and dancing parties are doorways to hell, and who asserts that no woman who attends them can escape untarnished.

Among the speakers was H. W. Taylor, the venerable secretary of the Asylum he venerable secretary of the Asylum Board, who denounced Ellsworth's attack on wives, mothers and sisters who dance a scandalous in the extreme. John York, principal of one of Stockton's schools, re-ferred to Rev. Ellsworth's sudden departure from that city, saying that he had slipped out like a cuttle-fish, hidden by an abundout like a cuttle-fish, hidden by an abundance of his own nastiness. Another speaker said that if the Lord had called Rev. Ellsworth away it was to be hoped that the Lord would keep him away, but it the Lord falled to do this some of the hundreds of indignant fathers and brothers at the meeting would take the matter in hand.

A committee of seven was appointed to draw up resolutions denouncing Rev. Ellsworth and the clergymen who permitted him to speak from the Methodist pulpit during the revival. Intense excitement prevails, and if Rev. Ellsworth returns he will surely do so at his perii.

ELLSWORTH INTERVIEWED. ELLSWORTH INTERVIEWED

Rev. Ellsworth was interviewed by an Examiner reporter on his return to San Francisco, and, in the course of the talk, made the following statement in regard to the Stockton affair:

to the Stockton affair:

"Now," said Rev. Mr. Ellsworth, "let me see. I don't know that I ought to say anything about this unfortunate trouble at Stockton—and yet, perhaps I should.

"Well," he said, after a bit of hesitation, "I may as well set the matter straight, I guess. I was thinking of writing to the Stockton Independent about it, anyhow, and this will save me all that exertion.

"The people of Stockton are treating me very badly, to tell the truth, for I have really given them no just reason for complaint. But, I'm not at all afraid, under-really given them no just reason for complaint. But, I'm not at all afraid, understand. These things always come out all right in the end.

"I went up there last week with Mr. Crittenton, who is the president of our institution, in order to do what I could to ward drumming up funds for the prosecution of our work and to assist in the religious services held there during our stay.

"On Wednesday afternoon some ladies called on me to ask for advice as to their daughters. The girls, so these mothers said, were on the point of joining a certain church which was not altogether satisfactory to the parents, and the reason of their determination was simply this: that the young ladies wished free license to dance all sorts of dances, and this particular church interposed no restraints in that regard.

"Creatingly here was a case calling for gard.

"Cettainly here was a case calling for prompt attention; and at the request of these mothers I concluded to talk especially of dancing at the religious gathering to be held that evening. The girls were to be there, you understand.
"Well. I talked."

held that evening. The girls were to be there, you understand.

"Well, I talked."

The remembrance this sentence called up seemed somewhat annoying, for the reverend gentleman drummed nervously on a book he was holding, and came to a dead hait in his narrative.

"Yes, I talked." he repeated, after a few moments: but I didn't say half the stuff I'm charged with saying. No, indeed:
"I denounced the waltz, but of course I wasn't fool enough to denounce dancing in general. Why, some of my best, friends dance. Yes sir. And if round dances are avoided there is no harm in dancing—not a bit. It's a very pleasant recreation, I'm free to admit, within certain limitations."

tion, I'm free to admit, within certain limitations."

Then Mr. Mr. Ellsworth drew from one of his vest pockets a little ivory tablet.

"Now, said he," consulting some entries on the ivory, "here are the figures I sprung on them that night.

"I told that Stockton audience that of 200 failen women I have met recently 178 owed their fail from virtue to round-dancing. And that's the truth. Within the past seven months I have talked confidentially with 200 women in this city and Los Angeles who have sinned grievously against the law of purity. They have told me the stories of their shame. There was no concealment. I got at the facts. Most of these women, of course, are limates of houses of ill-fame. The 179 alluded to at Stockton might have been pure and respected matrons today had they never danced.

"I declared moreover, that no woman."

"I declared, moreover, that no woman can waitz with a man for her partner without danger to her moral senses. I meant just what I said. Everybody knows that who has ever waltzed, and then, too, the music is voluptuous.

"But I didn't say that every woman likes to be hugged. Please take careful note of that. What I did say in that regard was this. That men don't care to have for a partner in the waltz a girl who is unwilling to be hugged. And the fact is so. The more willing a young lady is to submit to an embrace the more she is in demand as a partner, and the girl who does her share of the hugging dances every dance. I know it; there is not a bit of guesswork about the assertion.
"I can't see why Stockton is so rough on guesswork about the assertion.

"I can't see why Stockton is so rough on me, after all, for I don't staud alone in this matter. Robert Faulkner, now of Eos Angeles, where he is associated with the Pacific Gospel Mission, used to conduct bon places the percentage at 75. What will Stockton do about it, I wonder? If I'm wrong I have good company."

The Rev. Ellsworth glanced again at the little tablet.

the little tablet.

"Just deny very positively," he continued, after a brief consultation of the entries on the ivory, "that I ever said that we have eight of Stockton's most prominent young ladies at the home. Of course I never said it. I did say, however, that within the four years our institution has been in existence we have had seventeen Stockton girls at the home and that we piloted each of them through her grievous trouble, shielding her so far as possible from public shame. I told them also that the average expense of caring for each of these women was $158, making a total outlay on account of Stockton's unfortunates of $2686. And I reminded them that the total contributions received them that the total contributions received them that the total contributions received toward our work from their city foots up precisely $54. Then I made an appeal for coin, and in the course of my remarks I declared that there were women actually within the sound of my voice who were rescued by the home. And that was trueyes, sir—every word of it. We haven't any Stockton girls among the twenty-two inmates of the home, just now; but you may be sure that of about two hundred unfortunates admitted since 1888 seventeen unates admitted since 1888 seventeen nailed from Stockton, and that the rescue of these poor girls cost my indignant critics just $54: yes, sir—just $54.

"I have been told that they intend to tar and feather me; but I hardly think they'll go that far. I have been grossly misrepresented, and they'll find that out in time. At all events I'm going back there during the week. I'm not easily intimidated."

HE old is becoming new-emerald hues, cardinals, prunes, plums, lavender, light shades of brown, pinkish tans, the shades of thirty years ago, coming again with extended skirts and larger hais. Stockings of bright colors, tans and modes. White skirts and showy colors seem to be the tendency for the future; everybody has resolved in their innermost thoughts never to touch or wear them, and are nearly dying to at the same moment. It is only a question of a few months when the sidewalks will be a vanity fair of bright colors, and you will all want to be in the procession-way up in front. This is human nature, and we all possess a little of it in our veins. Greens, a dozen different shades in the dress goods stock, and every one a choice color. Reds from the bright scarlet up to the prune shades, and from that on up to purple; light, pinkish tans jumping up to bright browns of the long ago. Some of the new shades made out of the old, and now young and full of life once more. "I will never wear them. I'll take a sample to show my dress maker." She tells you they are stylish, and that settles it. You will either have a bright new dress or you will be sick a bed for a week or more. #### THE FRANCIS FIRE.

Public Interest in the Arson Trial Unabated.

The Fifth Day and No Falling Off in the Crowds.

The Taking of Testimony for the Defense Finallly Commenced.

Witnesses for the Prosecution Flatly Contradicted-A Small-sized Sensation Sprung.

Although the trial of the case against ex-County Recorder John W. Francis, charged with arson, reached its fifth day yesterday there was no sign of any abatement in the interest evinced in the proceedings by the public, for the crowd during the afternoon session was just as large as that which has filled the courtroom every day since the matter came up. The prose-cution closed its case early in the morning, but the remainder of the day was sumed in the examination of one witness, the first for the defense, and the probabilities are that the case will not reach the jury until the end of the

The proceedings commenced shortly after 9 o'clock, Mrs. Lizzie Henderson being called by the District Attorney for the purpose of showing that the reason why Justice McLean did not see son why Justice McLean did not see the witness when he was engaged in putting out the fire in the rear was that she was standing behind him. When she and Mrs. McCann first saw McLean they were in front of the they were in front of the house, and they told him that the house was on fire both inside and outside. Witness also explained that the McCann children, Willie and Katle, had gone to fetch their father before McLean ar-rived. Mrs. Henderson denied posi-tively that either Mrs. McCann or herself sat upon the steps of the butcher's shop that night.

Upon cross-examination Attorney Williams endeavored to prove by the witness that she had told Sylvester that she could not get in at the side gate, through which she entered the rear end of the Francis premises after warning him, but Mrs. Henderson denied that she made any such statement to Sylvester. An effort was also made to show that she was intoxicated both at her own and the Francis fires, but she denied the imputation indignantly. She also denied that she drank out of the bottle she had purchased for Mc-Cann while in front of the Francis She denied that she was in the habit of drinking, but admitted that she sometimes "took a sip for sociability's

The District Attorney having objected to the question as to whether or not she drank when living at Daggett, Attorney Williams stated that he had a witness here by whom he would prove that Mrs. Henderson kept a house of ill-fame at Daggett, but he was interrupted. fame at Daggett, but he was interrupted by District Attorney Dillon, who de-nounced this conduct as improper, and called upon the defendant's attorney to stop.

After a brief argument between Attorney Williams and Judge Smith, the latter curtailed the discussion by saying curtly: "That will do, Mr. Williams the Court will not hear you further. can certainly not allow you to go into an attack upon the witness in this man-ner. It is highly improper, and the ob-jection is sustained."

Mrs. Henderson admitted having taken a teaspoonful of some liquid down at the saloon that night, but she did not know what it was. She denied that Mrs. Francis had ordered Mrs. McCann to take her away because she was drunk, but admitted frankly that the defendant's wife had told Mrs. McCann to take her home.
Attorney Williams then started over the whole matter again from the beginning, and laid particular stress upon the lamp which she saw on the bedroom floor, getting her to describe it over and over again. She did so, stating that it was a glass lamp, without either burner or chimney.

The Court at this juncture interrupted counsel and remarked that, as this ground had already been traveled ground had already been traveled pretty thoroughly before, it was mere waste of valuable time to do so again, and the witness was excused.

Two other witnesses were called by the District Attorney, but as neither responded, it was stipulated by counsel that the absentees might be called at any time, with which understanding the people rested.

After a slight delay, caused by the fact that Attorney Owen mistook the hour at which the case was to be taken op, and Attorneys Williams and Shinn had matters to attend to in other courts, and Judge Smith had one or two ex parte matters to dispose of, the de-fense proceeded to introduce its evi-dence.

The first witness called on behalf of The first witness called on behalf of the defendant was Prestley Dukes, a young man in the employ of the Germain Fruit Company, now a resident of Boyle Heights, but at the time of the Bre a resident of Pico Heights. He lestified to the effect that his house at that time was almost opposite to that of the defendant on Pico street, and whout two hundred and fifty feet disabout two hundred and fifty feet distant. He had lived there for six months prior to the fire, and he and his family were on very intimate terms with the Francis family. On the night of February 22 last witness occupied the front room of this house with his wife, awakened by hearing a woman's voice shouting "Fire" and "Help." Witness, whose acquaintanceship with the Francises was such that he could readily recognize their voices, took the voice he heard to be that of Mrs. Francis. Toolse key. When he entered the Franciscis was voice to the heard to be that of Mrs. Francis. Toolse key. There was also a reflection on the butcher's shop. He heard the cries three times, and then Francis shouted twice. Hurriedly witness windows the results of the work of the cries three times, and then Francis shouted twice. Hurriedly with the hose, which was attached to dressing, witness ran across the street; his wife, who also arose, saying that she would wake her brother, Raymond his wife, who also arose, saying that she would wake her brother, Raymond Sloan, and send him over after him. He did not see any person near there at that time, but as he ram up the path in front of the house he saw Mrs. Francis in dishevelled attire standing in frout of the house, and Francis, hatless and half dressed, appeared at the door carrying the drawer of a bureau. There were a sewing machine and bundle of hedelothes on the lawn, and a trunk on the porch. Witness said to Mrs. Francis, 'How is this' is it your turn now?' (Referring to the recent incendiary dres in the neighborhood), to which sine seplied, 'It seems so.' Witness at once went around to the rear, where the light was reflected from, and found a free under the kitchen, which had already assumed alarming proportions, and was roaring. It was fanned by a pretty stiff breeze blowing directly into the opening from which it could be seen. He had seen no one but the Francises up to that time, and was pos-titive that no other person was in the yard. He then ran back to the front and saw his brother-in-law coming in fat the gate. Then Sellingscheidt, Pugh and witness's wife arrived in the order and witness's whe arrived in the often ramed. As there was a dense black smoke and a good deal of it in the hall, Sellingscheidt asked for a lantern, and witness went home to get one. While he was getting the key of the house from his wife, who stood upon the sidewalk near the fence, witness noticed three women standing stood upon the sidewalk near the fence, witness noticed three women standing near her, two of whom he recognized as Mrs. Henderson and Mrs. McCann. They were drunk, "good drunk." They were sitting on the steps of the butcher's shop drinking from a flask, giggling and poking each other, when he returned with the lantern, and told him that he need not go back to the fire, as it was all out. Then they took another drink. He did not see them again that night.

when he got back to the Francis house he took the lantern and made a careful investigation of the front parlor, the door of which was open. There was not a sign of fire there, and but very little smoke, which had drifted in from the hall. He then west out on from the hall. He then went out on the porch again, and someone took the lantern away from him. His next visit was to the bedroom opposite the par-lor, where he found a lamp upset and lying on the floor. The curtains were burnt and a small blaze was burning on top of the bookcase, between two windows. Witness positively identified some charred remnants of a metal lamp as part of the lamp he had seen, and a brand new one of similar pattern, filled with water, was introduced in nied with water, was introduced in evidence for the purpose of showing that if upset the fluid would run out of the burner. Seeing two or three men in the room (he could not remember whom they were), witness said: "I suppose you fellows will attend to this. I'll go back;" and left the room. Upon going to the rear of the house he found that the fire had gained considerable. that the fire had gained considerable headway under the kitchen, extending about ten feet one way and eight feet the other. There were a number of people back there at that time. Pugh had his hose, and Francis was raking pieces of burning wood from under the pieces of burning wood from under the house. Witness again ran across to his-own house for his hose, with which to throw water on the bookcase, and upon his return he tried to fasten one end to the faucet behind the house, but it was too hot, and a cloud of steam six feet high escaped, the water in the pipe, which ran under the house, being at boiling point. When he went into the house again, Pugh was playing the hose upon the bookcase, and witness then went to the kitchen, where he saw a large hole burnt in the floor. Sloan was putting a fire out in the cupboard there. After the fire was presumed to be out, witness. Sloan, Sellinscheid and Francis made a tour of the house, and finding smoke emerging from a closet in Harry's room, investigated the matter and came to the conclusion that there was fire inside the walls. Sellingscheidt then broke open the casing with an ax, and some one brought in a zinc tub from which they threw water on the flames. After that witness, Sloan and Sellingscheidt went upstairs, and as the room was full of moke, the German opened the window to let it out.

Witness did not see either Justice Mc-Lean or the women on the premises while he was there, and stated, positively, that they were not there—that he must have seen them had they been present. He also stated that Willie McCann was not there when Selling-scheidt opened the casing with an ax.

When he heard the second alarm witness was sitting in his dining-room; but he at once ran out and across to the Francis residence, the roof of which was ablaze. Francis and his wife were again shouting. After getting a couple of chairs out, witness assisted Mellus in taking down a bedstead, but Francis in-terfered, stating that it was foolhard! ness to remain there, and that Mrs. Dukes was half-crazy outside. Both then dropped the bedstead and ran out. Mellus was in his normal condition-

Witness was then asked a number of impeaching questions, and stated, in response, that Justice McLean went to his house on the night of February 23 last and talked about the fire. Among other things he told witness that he did not things he told, witness that he did not know there was a fire in the closet, and hinted that, if they "could fix it on some one there would be something in it" for them. Dukes also stated that the francis fire was a peculiar McLean said he did not want to talk be-McLean said he did not want to talk before witness' little son.

At this juncture a recess was declared until 2 p.m. AFTERNOON SESSION.

Prestley Dukes's examination was resumed when Court reconvened at 2 o.m., but, after a few more questions, the witness was turned over to the prosecution. But little in the line of new facts or contradictory evidence was brought out in the cross-examination. District Attorney Dillon asked Dukes o explain how the light from the fire iscovered under the rear of the Francis house could be refracted in such a manner as to show a glare upon the butcher's shop.

The witness, while unable to give a angible explanation, still held that the facts were as he had stated, notwith-standing their apparent improbability. Referring to Mrs. McCann and Mrs. Henderson, witness stated that they first attracted his attention by their giggling when he went for a lantern. They called out to him that it was no use to get a lantern, as the fire was already put out. He left his wife standready put out. He left his wife standing near the front gate quite close to where the drunken women were sitting. She had told him to look at the women taking a drink. He looked and saw there were other men inside at work with the hose, which was attached to the hydrant in front of the house. It took but a few moments to quench the fiames, and after that had been done relative to the minor circumstances attending the first fire.

Counsel for the defense interposed an objection to the course, but the case finally proceeded.

Attorney Shinn at this juncture arose, and asked that the Court instruct those witnesses who might have come in after the order enforcing the rule as to their exclusion had been made to re tire, and await their turns.

The same attorney then created a small-sized sensation by stating that a certain Mr. Scott had been in the habit, during the course of the trial, of coming in and listening to the testimony and then going out into the corridors and relating what he had heard to the other witnesses.
The Court sternly declared such a proceeding to be in the nature of a con-tempt, and ordered that the offender be brought before the bar to answer.

Mr. Scott was called in, but the ac cuser, Mr. Shinn, said that the defense was not then prepared to furnish wit nesses to substantiate the charge, and asked that the contempt proceedings go over until today. Mr. Scott firmly denied having been guilty of the offense charged and looked daggers at his accuser.

District Attorney Dillon expressed the oninion that as the defense had the opinion that as the defense had made such a preemptory and unmistak-able charge, they should stand ready to as quickly back it up by proving it to be a fact. be a fact.

"We intend to prove it," retorted At torney Williams.

The Court then cited Mr. Scott to appear this morning at 9 o'clock, to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt, and attention was again turned to the cross-examination

He stated that the first time he saw McLean at the fire was when the second

McLean at the fire was when the second blaze broke out.

At the time of the first fire he asked Mr. Francis if there was anything he could do to help him. He also asked Mrs. Francis to come to his house to spend the night. Mr. Francis declined help, and said that he would stay up and keep watch about the premises, and Mrs. Francis decided to stay there with him. with him.

Lean said there was not enough straw underneath the kitchen to set the place Witness did not agree with him. McLean continued by saying to Duke that if the firebug could be detected there would be something in it for them, at the same time pointing in turn to the witness, Mrs. Dukes and himself. McLean also asked Dukes if he did not think Francis set his own house on fire. Further than that the witness told Mc-Lean that he had just put insurance or his furniture. McLean was sorry that he did not know it, as he said he would like to have written it up himself.

Some other conversation followed during which, McLean, noticing Duke's little boy sitting in the room asked the witness if he (the boy) would tell anything.

The court then adjourned until this morning when the preliminary con-tempt cause will first be taken up to be followed by the concluding cross-exam-ining of Mr. Dukes.

Capt. Cross Applies for an Electric Road Franchise.

Three Applicants in the Field-A Sharp Earthquake, but No Damsge-, Personal Notes and Brevitles.

Pasadenans have at last good grounds t expect that an electric street railroad will soon be extended from Los Angeles to Pas. soon be extended from Los Angeles to Pasadena, and put in active operation. It is strange that the opportunities of such a road have not long since attracted the attention of capitalists. Now, everybody wants a finger in the pie. Over a year ago a franchise was granted for an electric road up Fair Oaks avenue, but the promoters of the enterprise have, so far, done practically nothing looking to its construction. During the past two weeks two more applications for franchises for electric roads have been presented to the Council, which body has wisely refused to take taction on as yet, pending an investigation into which of the applicants really means business. The proposed route of one of the roads is up Pasadena avenue, and of the other, up Raymond avenue to Colorado street. Yesterday Capt. John Cross drove out from Los Angeles, and before taking his departure, he manifested his interest in the subject by filing the following paper with City Clerk Dyer:

"The undersigned, John Cross, would respectfully show to your honorable body that he intends to construct, maintain and operate an electric street railway between Los Angeles and Pasadena; that in the carrying out of such enterprise he desires to occupy a portion of the streets of Pasadena, as hereinafter set forth, and, therefore, your petitioner respectfully asks your honorable body to grant to him and his assigns a franchise for a street railway to be operated by electric power along and over Fair Oaks avenue from the southern limits of the city of Pasadena, crossing above grade the tracks of the Santa Fé and Terminal railroads to a junction with the tracks of the Pasadena Street Railway Company: thence along and over said company's tracks to California; thence east adena, and put in active operation. It is tracks of the Pasadena Street Railway Company: thence along and over said com-pany's tracks to California; thence east along California along California street to Raymond avenue; thence along said Raymond avenue and along and over the tracks of the High land Street Railroad Company to Colorad street, in the City of Pasadena."

This makes three active applicants in the field for electric road franchises. Who can pick the winner? LIVELY TIMES BELOW TERRA FIRMA.

An energetic earthquake struck the town about 11:45 o'clock yesterday morning. It was of brief duration, but very lively while it lasted. The first tremor introduced itself in a mild, politic sort of a way that no one who has any regard at all for earthquakes could take exception to. But this only acted as an advance guard for the shock proper, which came a few seconds later in a style that could not be misunderstood. Buildings, especially the high ones, wibrated in lively fashion, window sashes rattled, pictures went askew on the walls and chandeliers swayed pendulun-like to and fro. People rushed into the streets, not knowing exactly what had happened. Down at Hotel Green Manager Holmes elevated his portly form across the office counter with lightning-like rapidity and had vanished before Clerk Burns could catch his breath. In one of the high buildings a lady almost fainted from fright.

Afterthought, however, causes one to think that the quake didn't amount to much after all, especially as no damage whatever was done. Said a recent arrival from Kansas: "It was my first earthquake, and If that's all they amount to they can come as often as they like. Why, they're simply not in it with a Kansas cyclone."

Coroner Ey was telegraphed for, and held an inquest in the afternoon. Dr. Hunt testified that he had known the deceased for about three years, and that he frequently went on sprees, but had no other troubles that he knew of. A partially-filled vial of strychnine was found lying near Ford, from which about a teaspoonful of the polson was missing. The deceased had a wife and two small children living in San Bernardino. Mrs. Ford was telegraphed for early Tuesday morning, but had not arrived at the time of the inquest. Ford left a letter to members of the A.O.U.W. lodge, of which-he claimed to be a member in good standing. He said that no enewas to blame for the rash act but himself, and left a number of sealed letters to be delivered to his wife personally. After hearing the testimony of a number of witnesses the jury rendered the following verdict: "We, the jury, find that deceased was named Frank H. Ford, was a resident of San Bernardino, aged about 30 years, and that he came to his death by strychnine, taken with suicidal intent."

The marriage of Charles E. Dunscomb of East St. Louis, Ill., and Miss Flora E. Damron of this city occurred at 5 o'clock on Monday evening at the residence of the bride's parents, C and Seventh streets. Besides the members of the family a score of the most intimate friends of the high contracting parties were present at the appointed hour. The shades were drawn and the beautifully decorated rooms were displayed under artificial light. Promptly at the appointed hour Prof. Skinner struck up Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" on the piano, and Misses Lena Dauron, Annie Reutinger and Nellie Brown, bridesmaids, entered from the hall, followed by the little flower girls, Fay Dauron and Gladys Brazelton, who strewed roses in the path of the bride and groom as they entered.

Taking their places under the large floral bell, the happy young people were soon made one according to the ceremony of the Presbyterian church, pronounced by Rev. John Herron. After congratulations a wedding dinner was served, and at 7:45 the newly married couple started for their future home at East St. Louis, Ill., where the groom has charge of the advertising department of the Daily Journal of that city.

Among the presents were the following. five years ago was scarcely considered worth the trouble of staking out for a claim. There are now residing within this territory 3600 electors, indicating a total population of nearly 14,000. There are now within the State thirty-one counties, not counting those cut up during the session of the last Legislature, which have a less population. Five-sixths of the counties of the State have a less area, and very many of them have a much smaller area in a high state of cultivation. The new offi-cers will therefore have a magnificent charge to care for. UNKNOWN

While walking up a small arroyo near Arlington station on Monday a young man by the name of Charles Graham discovered the dead and decaying body of an unknown man. He first found up a tin can containing two black masks, such as are used by thieves, and then, lightly covered with debris and earth, the man's body. In the forehead was a hole through which a bullet had passed, penetrating the brain, and upon the breast was a gash, apparently made with a knife. Beside the body was a piece of rubber hose filled with shot, several pieces of candle, some bottler and other such stuff. About the clothes of the dead man were skeleton keys, a spoon, some cord, a red handkerchief and a few other things. The man was apparently about 40 years of age, 5 feet 10 inches tall brown hair, sandy beard, his upper teeth nearly all gone. He wore blue overalls, a coat and vest of dark checked material, a striped shirt, heavy buckled shoes and a feit hat. He was apparently a burglar killed by his accomplice. The Coroner's jury returned a verdict to the effect that the man had come to his death at the hands of some one unknown. the dead and decaying body of an unknown

The magnificent private train of Dr W. S. Webb, of the Wagner Sleeping Car Company, is due to arrive at Colton Friday, and thence run direct to San Diego. In a day or two thereafter the party will arrive in Los Angeles, going hence to San Francisco and Vancouver. This train, which consists of six Wagner cars, is said to be the most magnificently furnished and luxuriously appointed train that ever came west of Chicago. The cars are occupied by officials of the Wagner Sleeping Car Company, with their families.

ANOTHER RAILROAD SCHEME. Last Saturday's issue of THE TIMES contained an account of an immense canal project, by means of which a strip of land eighty miles in length, running through the western portion of Inyo county, is to be irrigated, and thus opened up to cultivation. It has since been announced that a railroad is to be built, running through the valley and to Mojave. Frederick Stock, who was in-London for some time, engaged in organizing the canal company, saw, on returning to this country, that a railroad would be necessary in order to afford the settlers of the valley a way of mar-keting their products. He therefore cabled a long message to his company in London regarding the matter, and re-ceived a return cablegram telling him to go ahead with a survey and also with the getting of the right-of-way. The estimated cost of the new enterprise is $2,500,000, and the organization controlling it will be known as the Los Angeles, Owens Valley and Utah Railroad

The railroad is projected to begin at Bishop, which is about twenty miles north of Independence and about ten miles north of the upper end of the canal. The line will follow about the scanal. The line will follow about the same course as is taken by the canal, passing through Independence, Lone Pine, Olancha, Rose Springs Valley and Indian Wells Valley. From the place last named it will bear to the west and end at Mojave, where it will connect with the Atlantic and Pacific and Southern Pacific roads. Its total length will ern Pacific roads. Its total length will be about one hundred and forty miles. rights-of-way.

It is the exception of the twenty miles next to the northern terminus the course is a nearly level one, and will require practically no grading. It is alleged that the land penetrated by this road would furnish a trainload of freight each day. Large quantities of stock are raised within these valleys, and their yields of potatoes and alfalfa are said to be very heavy. From the mines in that region the ore may be shipped to this city and smelted. The projectors say that, as soon as the survey is completed, the work on the railroad will be rapidly pushed and will be in operation within a few months. It is intended to eventually extend the line southerly into Los Angeles and northerly into Utah.

PORT OF SANTA MONICA.

Southern Pacific officials are rejoicing over a late achievement which has added prestige to the new port of Santa-Monica. By a special concession of the Secretary of the Treasury the ship County of Antrim, with 10,000 barrels of cement, has been permitted to land a portion of her cargo at Santa Monica. The concession extends to other vessels The concession extends to other vessels with cargo consigned to any of the ports or sub-ports of entry of Southern California. This is a dignity which the Santa Monica wharf has not before enjoyed, for the County of Antrim will be the first foreign vessel to discharge cargo there, though the coastwise steamers stop there periodically.

Edmonds says in the Engineering Magazine: "In the decade under review a new industry of vast magnitude was created. Twelve years ago electricity as applied to street-cars, for power purposes of all kinds, for house and street illumination was a new thing. In fact electric street-railroads have only been in successful operation about half of that time. The electrical age was practically just commencing, and the aggregate capital invested, outside of telegraphy, was small. Now almost every town of any size has its electric railroad, streets everywhere are being road, streets everywhere are being lighted with electricity, and electricity furnishes power for factories, to run elevators and for many other purposes; still we have scarcely seen the begin-

George Simpson, who will be tried this week on a charge of adultery, has not left town, as was reported Monday. His former bondsmen feared that he had done so, as they were unable to find him, and it was reported that he had declared his intention of going to Denver, but he was located very quickly vesterday when an officer started out to look him up. He gave a new bond for his appearance when wanted. It is understood, however, that the bonds men have nothing to fear, as a certified check has been deposited by Simpson's father, who is a Ventura capitalist, with a bank in this city, which will fully cover any possible loss, should Simpson junior take it into his head to depart without leave. In connection with the case the leave. In connection with the case the report is also current that Mrs. Simpson some time ago wrote to the elder Simpson offering to reliquish her claims to the monthly alimony providing that she be given $1400 cash. "I suffered for years from chronic catarrh of the head, nose and throat, and during the past year the trouble became very much worse." I had intense pains through my head, and sometimes roaring and ringing sounds that would almost make me wild. My hearing was so much affected that it caused me considerable anneyance, hard lumps, there was a continual discharge of mucous into my throat, and in the morhing it would cause me to hawk and spit until I was almost exhausted. I had severe pains through my chest and under my shoulders: I could not sleep well at night, and would get up in the morning feeling but little refreshed.

"I have been under the care of Dr. De Menco and associates but a short time, and I have not felt so well for years. I sleep well, pains have all left me, and my hearing is wonderfully improved.

"I am very well pleased indeed, and I am glad to give my statement if it can be of any benefit to the public." ood news to his many friends. He says:

CATARRH.

CATARRH.

Catarrh is often regarded by the patient as a cold in the head, and he often expresses his astonishment at his remarkable tendency to contract a fresh cold. Indeed, he declares he is scarcely free from one cold before he takes another; and he is always exceedingly careful. It is also a matter of surprise to him that the cold always seems to settle in the head and throat.

At times many of the symptoms of catarrh may seem to abate, and the patient is led to hope that the disease is about to wear off; but another class of symptoms soon appears, and he learns to his horror that, instead of recovery from the disease, it is changed in its character and extended to the throat. A sense of weariness is sometimes felt in reading, speaking or singing, boarseness at times occurs a sensation of dryness is sometimes felt in the throat, or it appears that some foreign substance, as, for instance, a hair, obstructed the throat; there becomes a sense of languor and fatigue, the breath lessens upon a little exertion, a short, hacking cough, a peculiar sound in clearing the throat, a feeling as though there were not more enough in the chest to breathe; these and other symptomsoccur after the disease has made considerable progress. Then it is a time when consumption is about to begin its dreadful work. Up to this point the progress of the disease may have been slow, and the patient may, in expressing his confident, hope that it will "wear off." declare that he has had catarrh for years and has not seemed to become much worse, and trust he will "by and by "recover. But this delusion is the grand error which has peopled our cemeteries with consumption for sumptive forms, as all forms of catarrh end finally in consumption.

TE seem to be favored sons of the Semi-tropic. The people of Southern California, ever since we came amongst them, have been more than considerate in giving us their aid in building up its leading business. The success which has attended the introduction of a better class of goods this spring has been marked, and we feel more than grateful for the public confidence be-stowed in the wares of this great house. Henceforth the "PEOPLE'S STORE" will be synonymous with the best of merchandise. Our dress goods department, as you can see, has doubled its sales; our millinery department has been taxed to its utmost; our wash fabric department is showing styles and qualities that you never dreamed of; our lace and trimming department will show you the handsomest goods in Los Angeles; our shoe department has just placed an order at $5000 with one of the finest manufacturers in the United States; our underwear department sold its highest

We are dealing with a better class of patrons, showing a better class of wares, and the number of people that you see in our stores daily purchasing with confidence that they are obtaining the best values for the least money, marks the greatest progress in the existence of this house. We do not aim to see how poor a class of merchandise we can sell at a small price, but we make a gigantic effort to sell the best merchandise that we can buy at the closest possible margin. ed meeting of Southern California range-growers was held yesterday at er of Commerce rooms.

The first meeting was held at Colton wo weeks ago from yesterday. The proceedings, consisting chiefly of a discussion as to the place where the fol-lowing meeting should be held, were fully reported in The Times. A second meeting was held at Colton on Tuesday, March 28, at which better coun cils prevailed. It was realized that, if ovement was to become anything beyond a county affair, a point more convenient to the residents of the seven counties would have to be selected for a meeting place, and it was then decided to convene in Los Angeles.

A meeting had also been called for the same time—10:30—to endeavor to wind up the affairs of the Fruit-growers' Union. At suggestion of W. A. Spalding, this matter was taken up first.

first.

H. W. Krukeberg was recommended as temporary secretary, in the absence of Mr. Smith. The proceedings of the nevious meeting were read. A committee of investigation had then presented a report, which disclosed many irregularities. It was stated that it had been impossible to secure vouchers from George J. Mitchell, the manager of the union. A motion had been carried to refer the matter back to the committee and secure an accounting from Mr. Mitchell. Messrs. Reymert and McKenzie had offered their services free.

The report of the committee was received and filed.

W. A. Spalding explained that several important errors had been found in the expert accountant's report of Mr. Mitchell's books, due to non-entry of several items. The directors believed the $96.48 to be a just account, The attorney's fee was a different matter. The directors had authorized no suit to be brought.

against the union.

Judge Reymert said Mr. Mitchell had offered to give his affidavit that there were no other claims against the union.

Dr. Hyer's motion was recorded.

Judge Reymert said there were two suits now pending. If the claim was units now pending.

Judge Reymert said there were two suits now pending. If the claim was allowed, these would be settled. Otherwise, the ligitation would be prolonged. W. A. Spalding urged the final adjustment of matters, to save expense. Dr. Hyer insisted on knowing whether all accounts and vouchers had been turned over by Mr. Mitchell.

On motion, Mr. Mitchell, who was present, was invited to speak in his own behalf. He said he thought all this trouble might have been avoided had he been called upon to appear before the committee. The papers had been in a desk, in storage. The parties who held the desk refused to give it up unless they were paid for the storage, which he did not feel inclined to do, having already paid out sufficient on which he did not feel inclined to do, having already paid out sufficient on account of the union. The vouchers were comparatively unimportant. There had been few expenditures outside of his salary. He explained the change made by Mr. Woods, of Ontario, for packing. About 400 boxes had been lost. Mr. Woods had paid $25 for the rent of a packing house. The shortage of packing material was an offset against this, and several other small claims. The speaker reiterated that there were no other outstanding claims against the union.

It was suggested that the time being wasted was worth more than $96, and a motion was made to refer the matter to the Executive Committe, with power to act.

a motion was made to refer the matter to the Executive Committe, with power to act.

On motion the question was so referred, without a dissenting vote.

W. A. Spalding hoped that members of the union who had not paid their second assessment, of a dollar a share, would do so, and let the affairs of the union be wound up honorably.

Judge Reymert asked where the money was to come from to pay the claim, supposing it should be allowed and members not come forward with their subscriptions. The assessments levied were involved in law, and could not be enforced. Subscriptions therefore must be voluntary.

M. Baldridge suggested that claims might be advertised for, but that would not stop the litigation. He suggested that each member put up now, pro rata.

A member tendered $5. A recess of ten minutes was taken to enable the secretary to receive subscriptions.

Meantime W. E. Collins of Ontario, secretary of the previous meetings of the foul of the suggested that contains the secretary of the previous meetings of fruit growers at Colton, suggested that Loney of Pomona promised sufficient to make up the amount to $100.

[Ouite a percentible shock of earth.

Quite a perceptible shock of earth-quake here occurred (at 11:44) as if to celebrate the winding up of the union.] On motion, the fruit-growers' meet-ing was adjourned until I p.m. It was 1:15 when the meeting again convened. There were about sixty persons present.

The secretary gave an outline of what had been done at the two previous meetings, held at Colton. At the first meeting no definite action had been taken, and the adjourned meeting was held. At that meeting the idea pre-vailed that it was too late to accomplish anything for the season, but that no time should be lost in preparing to handle the crop of 1898-94. "If," said Mr. Collins, "we could elminate selfishness and suspicion the problem might easily be solved. But one man has oranges which he thinks a little better than others and its heavy! get a little than others, and if he can't get a little better price, there is at once a stumb-ling block." The speaker then referred to the jealousies existing between lo-calities, which he said must be dropped if anything practical was to be accom-

The idea today was to have a general talk, and get the views of the fruit-growers, then to hold meetings in other localities. Unless 90 per cent. of the growers join in this movement, there is little or no use in trying to do anything. If the disasters of this year and of two years ago are not enough to convince all of the necessity for such a move-ment, then those of us who are conment, then those of us who are convinced must step aside until the others have learned wisdom. The market is there; the fruit is here. What is needed is to place the fruit properly in the market. T. H. B. Chamberlin of Riverside, who has had much experience, has outlined a plan which has worked well in Riverside. It might be modified to suit other sections. There modified to suit other sections. There is no proposition for an iron-clad agreement. There must be a sincere spirit of cooperation.

The chairman called on Mr. Chamber-lain, who addressed the meeting. He repeated the statements made by him at the first Colton meeting, and repeated the statements made by him at the first Colton meeting, and fully reported in THE TIMES, as to the importance of this industry, upon which the future welfare of Southern California and the maintenance of values rest.

Let us, said the speaker, have harmony.

Let us forget the localities from which we come. Why is the market demoralized? It is from lack of method and system. Method and system contribute to success in all hypnoches. to success in all branches of business. The orange industry in Southern California has been left to drift. It is drifting away.

Mr. Chamberlin then called attention to the Riverside Orange-growers' Protective Association, which had been in existence the past winter. This or-ganization had been grossly misrepre-sented by parties interested against it. It had been stated in the East that the organization was a trust to secure exorbitant prices. This was not true. The objects were to regulate prices and secure the proper marketing of fruit. There were eleven packing-houses represented. They were associated together under method. Outside of the association there were about 25 per cent. of the packers and 25 per cent. of the growers, who refused to become members. The association fixed prices at $1.75 for seedlings and $3 for navels. The association was to direct any consignments that were to be made. As a result of the action of the 25 per cent. of packers and growers who were outside of the organization its object was, to a great extent, defeated. Those 25 per cent. were shipping fruit and the 75 per cent. were protecting them. It had been found that new men could sell oranges just as well as those who had been in the business for years, if they offered the fruit cheap enough to they offered the fruit cheap enough to suit the buyers.

Among things which are absolutely essential to success, are: Full provision for every grower; the marketing of each crop in proportion, and at equal prices, and the giving of each grower the full average of the market from the beginning of the season until the close. What can the grower ask more?

These things can be done. All that

These things can be done. All that is required is the consent of the growers. There is an organization in Riverside which has worked successfully after this method for several years. The grower delivers his oranges at the packing-houses, has them weighed, and receives a ticket. At the end of each day, the culls of that day's packing are weighed. As the money is received it weighed. As the money is received it is distributed, pro rata, among the members. At the end of the season the aggregate of culls is ascertained and deducted from each grower's delivery, settlement being made, not by the box, but by the pound. It is not proposed in this plan to antagonize any element. The growers can pack their own fruit at actual cost, or make a contract with somebody. The packing is kept on a separate basis from the shipping. Several associations can combine and buy their packing material at the lowest rate. The customary brokerage of 5 cents a box is allowed for selling the crop.

In this manner every grower gets for his fruit all the market will afford. It is proposed to do away with all individual or firm brands, making them purely local in character. Each association would own the brand under which the fruit is packed. No name appears on the letterheads. Everything is done in the name of the association.

The orange crop of Southern California has reached such magnitude that the moving of it must begin early in the season. This will bring it into competition with Florida, and the fruit at first may have to go at a low price in the holiday season, but this will benefit the fruit that remains and keep sizes down. If the orange crop was under such control as this. today the price might be advanced 25 per cent and the fruit would move. At Riverside about 900 carloads out of 2000 have been moved. Riverside could afford to bury with the growers, if they are willing to mously elected.

Judge Reymert asked that the Fruitgrowers' Union committee be placed in possession of all the vouchers and papers. Mr. Spalding said he had the

On motion of Judge Reymert, the committee was authorized to close up the affairs of the union and dissolve it legally.

The cash received by the secretary from members amounted to $40.50. Mr. Chapman promised $25 and Mr.

twelve or fifteen active business men in the East, to push the business.

Eastern buyers are continually writ, ing to stop indiscriminate consignments and they would buy the fruit. They suffer from the present demoralization of the trade. The men at the other end of the line would be taken care of. There would not be half a dozen cars dumped in, on consignment, after a buyer had taken a car f.o.b. Just after the break in prices two carloads were the break in prices two carloads were ordered by two Eastern firms. Another dispatch countermanded the orders, be-cause the firms had several carloads cause the firms had several carroaus coming on consignment. This is what has demoralized the orange market. Good success is being met with in getting signatures to the plan at Riverside. Each association is to have only one salaried officer—ageneral manager. The managers are to meet daily, at a central office, to which all telegrams central office, to which all telegrams and correspondence comes. To this all managers have access. This removes all suspicion. The books are open. There is no chance of one man's getting the better of another. The plan works without any friction whatever.

The speaker closed amid applause. The speaker closed amid applause. In reply to inquiries, Mr. Chamberlin said the association was a simple one, not a stock company. It would probably be better to have a legal organization, although many growers are prejudiced against a corporation. The eleven who had first come together had incorporated and chosen a legally appropried. porated and chosen a legally-appointed head, so that they could sue and be sued. These eleven men take all the responsibility.

When the year closes a tabulated statement is made, showing where the fruit has been marketed. At the beginning of the season an estimate is made of every member's crop, to render it easier for the managers of the associations to pro-rate the shipments.
Fruit loses its identity after it goes to the packing-house. Everything is the packing-house. Everything is clipped from the tree and the weight of culls deducted from the total delivery. The price which the fruit brings per pound is then ascertained, at end of the

A grower asked how it would be when one man's fruit was a little better than another's.

Mr. Chamberlin said we all think we grow a little better fruit than our neighbors. They had had this trouble to contend with at Riverside. Conditions change, however, and an orchard which has rather better fruit this year may be excelled by others the next. However, this is provided for by a rule that, if a man persistently neglects his fruit, he may be shut out of participa-tion. This requires a two-thirds vote. At the same time, the association continues to handle the man's fruit, which Say there are, at Riverside, a hun ired carloads of fruit which is not good. Without organization, that fruit can be made to control the price of good fruit. By careful manipulation, from 25 to 50 per cent. of this fruit may be packed in the pool. Would it not be better to bury the remaining seventy-five or fifty carloads than to demoralize the marcarioans than to demoratize the mar-ket? Under this plan, $250,000 might be saved to the growers of Riverside alone, apart from the gain by avoiding demoralization of the market.

In reply to an inquiry as to the disposal of the fruit raised in Los Angeles city; some of which is not clean, Mr. Chamberlin said the bright fruit would pool and the scaly fruit would pool. If one locality has fruit in the market at a different price from another locality, it would go on its own merits. locality, it would go on its own merits. Riverside was not proposing to market the fruit of Southern California. Or-ders would come for Orange county fruit or Los Angeles county fruit, or Riverside fruit. The plan was to avoid undue competition in each locality.

C. P. Deyoe of Orange county com-plained that this was not a Southern California organization. It was Orange and Los Angeles fruit which caused the break in Riverside.

Mr. Chamberlin said they were not contemplating at present a complete Southern California organization. That might come afterward. The thing was to prevent men from cutting against their neighbors.

their neighbors.

Mr. Holmes drew attention to the fact that this meeting was called merely to consult and gather ideas. The main thing was to stop indiscriminate consignments. They should avoid a discussion as to the comparative value of oranges. If Orange county oranges sold for 50 cents, Riverside only got $1. They would prefer to get $1.50.

A suggestion was made by W. A. McFadden that each county organize and let the fruit of each locality be sold on let the fruit of each locality be sold on its merits. The counties could com-bine and get telegrams from the East to a central office. one telegram would suffice instead of several. The same would be the case at this end. Then, so many packing-houses would not be needed. Brands were now being build up by packers, the fruit being selected from the cream of all fruit in Southern California. It would be easy for all sections to come would be easy for all sections to come together, as suggested by Mr. McFadden, and agree upon a minimum price for fruit from each locality. It will not be sufficient to agree not to make con-signments. Absolute provision must be made for the care of the crop of every

Mr. Deyoe insisted that provision must be made for a time for shipment of fruit from other localities besides Riverside.

Mr. McFadden said that quotations would be sent out for fruit of all localities, and Eastern buyers could select what they wanted.

The chairman urged that the meeting come to something definite. As he un-M. Baldridge suggested that claims might be advertised for, but that would not stop the litigation. He suggested that each member put up now, pro rata.

A member tendered 55. A recess of ten minutes was taken to enable the secretary to receive subscriptions.

Meantime W. E. Collins of Ontario, secretary of the previous meetings of fruit growers at Colton, suggested that a chairman be appointed and an hour set for the meeting.

On motion W. A. Spalding was unanimously elected chairman. Mr. Collins and instead of paying 10 per cent. for monitated for secretaries. Mr. Holmes

Dr. Hyer offered an amendment that not less than 75 per cent of the orange-growers form the organization.

P. J. Dreher thought the organizations should not be too large. Each association should have the right to fix the price at which their frits should be the price at which their fruit should be marketed.

Dr. Hyer though an association would be of no use unless they could control three-fourths of the market.

The chairman said all they could do was to recommend the formation of such organizations. Let 100 per cent. come in, if they would.

Mr. Chamberlin thought they ought to enter into this on a 100 per cent. basis. Even 10 per cent. of the grow-ers could demoralize the market. No grower could give a valid reason for staying out of such an organization. The man who stays out is not friendly to the industries of Southern California, to say the least.

The chairman put Judge Reymert's resolution, that the organization of local associations, according to the Riverside model, be recommended.

The resolution was carried unani-

On motion of Mr. McFadden, a committee of five, on organization, was appointed by the chairman, as follows: Messrs. W. M. McFadden of Fullerton, J. D. Reymert of Los Angeles, Dr. G Hyer of Ontario, P. J. Dreher of Pomona, T. H. B. Chamberlin of Riverside.

M. Baldridge called attention to the fact that a meeting had been held here two years ago to effect just such an organization as this. Today they had attended its funeral. It was a failure because it was not properly supported. It is too often the case, said he, that people who attend these meetings forget ple who attend these meetings forget all about the matter as soon as they leave. Something must be done, or they would have to give up the business or run it on a starvation basis. There must be some such system as there is up North, which has accomplished much good. There are many localities in the orange business in Southern California, and they must all be recognized. Whether ignored or not, the product of these localities is a factor in the market. It is a big undertaking to prevent consignments, and establish fo.b. sales. The fight between firms demoralizes the market and must be stopped. Arrangements have been made on purpose to break a market. The speaker had proof of this. Every orange-grower in each locality should respond. Will they? They did not last time. He feared there would be the same trouble again. It is a sad commentary on our business sense, said he, if we cannot handle our product after we have raised it. Mr. Baldridge referred to the grape market. He had been forced to dig up his vineyard, and it looked as if he might now have to do the same thing with his oranges. The fight between firms de-

Attention was called, by a grower, to the necessity of disseminating full in-formation as to the objects of the as-sociation. They must educate the grow-ers gradually. Each grower who un-derstood the system could explain it to his neighbors. It would be wall to prohis neighbors. It would be well to pro-ceed upon this plan in each locality. More can be accomplished in this manner than at large meetings.

CALIFORNIA HAS THE CALL

lorida Acknowledges that We Get Away with Her on Orange-Shipping, [Jacksonville Times-Union, March 28.] A correspondent of the Times-Union, writing from Lake City, calls its atten-tion to following, which appeared in the New York Fruit Trade Journal of March 11:

The first car of California oranges which has been sent to Europe left on the White Star steamer Teutonic on Wednesday of this week. This was a car of Washington navels of the "Sunflower" brand, sent by the Earl Fruit Company to Messrs. Sgobel & Day of this city, who forwarded the same to Messrs. L. Connolly & Co. of Liverpool the Erie road, and, as the fruit was found on examination to be as near perfection in every respect as could be, there is no rea-son to believe that it will not arrive in Livson to believe that it will not arrive in Liverpool in the same perfect state that it left here in. It is to be hoped that our English cousins will take kindly to the fruit, so that further shipments can be made.

And he asks, not unreasonably; "What has become of Florida's orange market in Europe? If California oranges can stand that long overland journey, as well as the ocean trip, and find a sale in Europe, why cannot Florida oranges be shipped from this side of the continent and meet with profitable sales in Europe? Watch out now, and see if California does not repeat the experiment—yet she has a continent to cross, with heavy freight charges, before she is on an even footing with the fore she is on an even footing with the Florida fruit-grower. If there is a good market in Europe for American oranges, Florida is a fool to permit California to capture it."

Messrs. Sgobel & Day are the New York receivers of the shipments of the Florida Fruit Exchange—and the ex-particular. It will be noted, however, that this California fruit was found upon exam-ination in New York "to be as near perfection in every respect as could be," and there "was no reason to believe that it would not arrive in Liverpool in the same perfect shape" in which it left New York. Here is the secret of the whole business. Nearly three-quarters of the fruit that went out to London by the Ethelwold was badly picked, badly selected and badly packed. California has solved the packed. California has solved the picking and packing problem apparently. She does not persist in standing in her own light, as a majority of the Florida growers will only pick and pack for the market as carefully as the Californians do, they can "wipe up the earth" with the Westerners in the British and Continental markets.

This is right where we are weak.

ANOTHER CARLOAD FOR LONDON.

Quick Demand and High Prices for Azust

The Earl Fruit Company is preparing another carload of Washington Navel oranges for the English market. The car will be forwarded by fast freight tonight to New York, to be reloaded on the Liverpool steamer leaving the lat-ter part of next week. Recent authentic advices from abroad confirm the reports that the Azusa fruit heretofore exported arrived in much better condition than the car subsequently shipped from Riverside. The Azusa carload sold in London and Liverpool markets at an average of about $5.50 per box, netting the growers somewhere in the neighborhood of $3.50 per box, f. o. b., at Azusa, while the Riverside fruit averaged about $1.45 per box, f. o. b., to the producers. Many fruit-growers here claim that the foot-hill oranges of Azusa and contiguous territory are more hardy than The Azusa carload sold tiguous territory are more hardy than any others grown in the State, and therefore better adapted for long distance shipping. The first shipment of bulk oranges, without boxing or wrapping, was also sent from Azusa about two weeks ago, consigned to St. Louis. The fruit arconsigned to St. Louis. The fruit arrived in good condition, and another car followed to the same destination two days ago. By this mode of placing oranges on the market the fruit is considerably cheapened to consumers, and the demand thereby increased. It is confidently expected that next year's phinments to such points as Chicago. shipments to such points as Chicago, St. Louis and Minneapolis will be mostly in bulk carload lots. A liberal estimate places the total output of oranges from this point for the season at about one hundred and twenty-five carloads, or 37,500 boxes, mostly

THE MARRYING AGE.

EFFECT OF MARRIAGE ON THE DEATH RATE OF INFANCY.

Both the Bride and Bridegroom May Be Over Thirty and Under Fifty With Advantage -- Herr Korosi Has Deduced Some Interesting Figures

The mortality of young children is yearly decreasing. The decrease is ascribed to various causes. Some say that it is due to progressive improvement in the human race. Others attribute it to an increase of proper precaution in the care of the young. Still others contend that the cause of fewer deaths among children is to be found in no longer remulting them to est unsuitable. longer permitting them to eat unsuitable food and to wear unsuitable clothing. Few infer from the present rate of mor-tality that the marriages of parents have been made at more proper ages. Yet in-vestigation by scientific men has proved that if hereditary diseases be excepted there is nothing so dangerous to the life of a child as the marriage of its father and mother at certain ages. It is only recently that any inquiry into this subject has been undertaken. But the results which have thus far been obtained are such as to show that men and women must marry at particulariestages of their lives if their offspring is to be mentally and physically sound.

It is to Herr Korosi, the head of the statistical department at Buda-Pesth and already well known for the importance and accuracy of the conclusions he has arrived at from statistical inquiries in other fields, that we are indebted for the discovery of this new factor in determining the welfare that we are indepted for the discovery of this new factor in determining the welfare of the human race. The results which he ob-tained from a casual examination some 10 years ago of the relations existing between the mortality of children and the various ages at which their parents were married were so striking that they induced him to make a more exhaustive investigation. For the past 10 years, therefore Dr. Korosi

For the past 10 years, therefore, Dr. Korosi has been careful to ascertain, whenever the death of a child was registered, the ages of its father and mother, as well as that of the child and the cause of its death. He has child and the cause of its death. He has noted in all 29,813 separate cases, which, in making his deductions, he divides into two distinct classes, the deaths caused by hereditary diseases and the deaths caused by diseases which were contracted after birth. The former class is manifestly of the greatest importance for his purpose.

As the condition of the mother is evidential to the former class is manifestly of the greatest importance for his purpose.

The statistics in this instance ar

From this table it is evident that the most desirable age, as far as the health of her children is concerned, for a woman to marry is between the ages of 30 and 35, the mortality of children resulting from mar riages at that age being but 12.35 per cent. It also appears that a woman should marry when she is more than 35 years old rather than when she is between 20 and 30 years of

Mothers under 20 years of age are, according to statistics, more liable to bear sickly children than at any subsequent period in

The mortality of children by women in their teens is nearly double that of those whose mothers were married between 30 and 35 years.

Concerning deaths due to tuberculosis and atrophy, the statistician finds that twice as many deaths result from consumption and three times as many deaths from atrophy when the mothers are under 20 as when they are over the age of 20.

Herr Korosi also recognizes that the physical and mental condition of a father leaves, to the same extent, its impress on his children. He has accordingly prepared a table of greater leaves, so the same extent is simple as the results. table of greater length showing the results of the "age combination" of both parents. Men are slower in developing than women; Men are slower in developing than women; hence the relative difference between their

If, how-ever, the mother be of the prescribed age and the father slightly under 30 years, the result is nearly the same.

The most important deduction which can be made from these statistics is that men between the ages of 30 and 40 cannot with safety to their offspring contract marriages with women under 20, the rate of mortality in this case being no less than 37.88 per cent. This deduction is of exceptional importance because of the marked decrease in marriages of that nature at the present

Hypnotism in a Dentist's Office.

Early in March I felt equal to a trial for anæsthetizing dentine for excavating, and then made the discovery that continuous suggestion makes it possible to keep a patient hypnotized and the dentine wholly or partially anæsthetized for the full preparation of a cavity during the light sleep of the first and second degrees. I am not aware that this has ever been made successful before.

The hypnosis and the anæsthesia were aware that this has ever been made successful before.

The hypnosis and the anæsthesia were maintained by a constant repetition of the words: "Sleep, sleep. You are resting; you are not suffering; you are not dreading it: you do not care for it. Sleep, sleep," and so on continuously so long as the condition is desired. This is practically a continual rehypnotizing to offset the continual waking caused by the cut of the instrument. Sometimes the hypnosis will wear out in spite of continual suggestion, especially if the operator's attention is too wholly absorbed in the operation and his suggestions become weak. In such a case I stop and hypnotize again. I have hypnotized as many as six times at one sitting.

If the sitting is long and the hypnosis deep, the patient is likely to get tired, and I have found it is better to wake them up at intervals for rest or suggest a ready change of position, but the waking is much better.

By making this conservative use of hypnotism the patient in every instance will feel rested and stronger at the close of the sitting than before and will improve in courage and quiet as the sittings succeed each other, and in many cases the need of hypnosis will cease to exist, and the patient will submit to the operation in the wakeful state without shrinking.—Thomas Fillebrown, D. #### The Wearing of Clothes.

The Tribune has found out somehow that there are in the world 500,000,000 of that there are in the world 500,000,000 of fully clad people, 700,000,000 of partly clad people and 250,000,000 of naked people. We say that the naked millions have a perfect right to live in nakedness. They do not need clothes for warmth or comfort, and they do not think that they need them for any other reason. They do not ask other peo-ple to go naked, and the other people have no business to ask them to wear things. There are lots of respectable men and womno business to ask them to wear things. There are lots of respectable men and women among the naked millions who mind their own affairs. We do not suppose that the men of the Niger and Congo would be willing to live in this world if they had to wear coats, vests, trousers, plug hats and leather boots, or that the women would find life tolerable if dressed up in gowns, bonnets, shawls, hoopskirts and things.

Most of the nude and seminude people of our race are in Africa, and they don't want us to bother them. Most of the clothed and semiclad people are in Asia, Europe and America, and they ought to be willing to let their African brethren enjoy the sunshine. Yet the people who wear clothes are shine. Yet the people who wear clothes are perpetually urging the naked people to buy and wear them. It is impudence. A naked person may be better and wiser than a clothes wearer. He may be pious, virtuous, sensible, industrious, brave and democratic. Another thing is to be said for the naked millions. They drink very little which were

An Anecdote of Brignell.

Though one of the most nervous singers that ever went before an audience, Brignoli in his way was one of the most conscien-tious. He refused to sing if he did not feel tious. He refused to sing if he did not feel that his voice was in a condition to do justhat his voice was in a condition to do justice to the song and to himself. He was a firm believer in homoepathy, and was never without two small vials, one containing bryonia and the other spongia, which he used alternately. His body servant, Barbagelata, usually administered the drug.

On one occasion it happened that Barbagelata gave him a larger quantity of bryonia than he had asked for; but, like the faithful servant that he was, he informed his master of the mistake. Brignoli was furious. He thought he was a dead man. He raved and stormed and swore as only he

He raved and stormed and swore as only he could swear. Barbagelata, thinking to relieve his mind, swallowed the entire contents of the phial.

"You see, Signor Brignoli, there is no harm in the medicine," he said.

"Ahe my God!" cried Brignoli, forgetting his own danger at once, "you are a dead his own danger at once, "you are a dead his own danger at once," who are a dead his own danger at once, "you are a dead him."

ness, which has grown to be a gigantic in-dustry. The processes employed are very simple, the fresh milk being put into a great copper tank with a steam jacket. While it is being heated, sugar is added, and the mixture is then drawn off into a vacuum tank, where expropration is provacuum tank, where evaporation is produced by heat. The vacuum tank will hold perhaps 9,000 quarts. It has a glass window at the top, through which the operator in charge looks from time to time.

He can tell by the appearance of the milk when the time has arrived to shut off the steam, and this must be done just at the right moment else the batch will be spoiled. Next the condensed milk is drawn into 40-quart cans, which are set in very cold spring water, where they are made to revolve rapidly by a mechanical contrivance, in order that their contents may cool evenly. Mice That Subsist on Scorpions. Among the queer forms of animal life that inhabit Dealth valley is a mouse that has acquired such a taste for scorpions that they form its entire bill of fare. The scor pion carries its formidable armament in the pion carries its formidable armament in the end of its slender, elongaged abdomen in the shape of an exceedingly venomous, hooked sting. The mouse leaved many generations are where the distributed the world ago where the scorpion carries its weapon, and when he meets it he leaps at the uplifted abdomen, takes off the sting at a single bite and proceeds to make a meal of his helpless prey. #### The Colossus of Rhodes

The Colossus of Rhodes.

The Colossus of Rhodes, a bronze statue, was 105 feet high. It was made by Chares, who, aided by an army of workmen, consumed 12 years in its construction. It remained in position in the harbor of Rhodes for 60 years, and was thrown down by an earthquake B. C. 224. It lay on the ground 894 years and was sold to a Jew for old metal. He carried away 600 camel loads, or about 720,000 pounds, of bronze.—

But it is not the women of the English colony that furnish the best examples of dress. The royal family of Russia is well represented, beginning with the Grand Duchess Michael. The Russian women are all dressed from Paris, and it is scarcely possible to distinguish them by their apparel from the French. The same may be said of the Maharanee of India, wife of the Galkwar of Baroda. This is true also of American women, of whom, however, there are not many here. The most conspicuous American is Mrs. Thomson, who lives at Nice in a gorgeous palace, and whose lavish entertainments are the talk of the Riviera. I have not seen her.

How Milk is Condensed.

When condensed milk was first introduced 80 years ago, the idea was laughed at. The inventor carried the entire daily supply for New York city in a 10-quart pail, delivering it personally to his patrons. He died worth $7,000,000, made out of the business, which has grown to be a zigantic interest which has the bonnet in the contrary but though small it is more in evidence than the rest of the dress; it is the finishing touch, like the crown on a king. This is because the women are always seen in the carriage. It is the women who habitually drive that have given the bonnet of today its special and unique development, and therefore it is in such society as this that the bonnet is seen in perfec-

When the woman of fashion walks she wears a hat, which may be no more than a toque, but still has the quality of a hat, and the bonnet has become the sign of leisure and a part of gala dress. A bit of lace; a few mock jewels. This is the substance of it. The crown counts for next to nothing. It is often dispensed with, though the newest idea makes it a tuny disc no larger over than a hand and curied a little, like a rose eaf, to fellow the head. A DASHING COSTUME.

In this most unique toilet several things are to be noted; the curious effect of the clusters of three; how fashion has transferred the jabots from the neck to the armholes; also that the sleeves are trimmed. Worth confessed to me the other day that the present sleeve has been so widely copied and become so common he is finding it abso-lutely necessary to devise something else. This bit of trimming may be the first herald of change. first herald of change.

MODEL FOR A FOULARD.

A foulard gown sprinkled with white and shot in stripes so that when plaited an old-rose fold lies against a green one, has a deep, green velvet flounce on the skirt reaching nearly to the knees, and a sleeveless jacket of the velvet, from under each front of which issues a ruffle of the silk. The sleeves descend in a cascade of puffs to the elbow, and are close below. The bonnet with this dress has for its only trimming in front a huge insect with green wings spread. Green velven bandeau and strings. A NEW PABRIC.

An exquisite gown is made of dark ecru silk woven like a coarse canvas and wrinkles a little in crepon fashion. It is stamped over with palm leaves in mauve outlined with green. Three ruffles set far apart on the skirt are each edged with mauve velvet ribbon. The round bodice perfectly fitted and without trimming has a belt and neck band of mauve velvet each drawn round in gathers and fastened behind with a rosette. An entirely new hat and a very stunning one, was worn with this gown. It was of yellow leghorn with a rim of perhaps four inches turned directly against the crown in front and pinned with a brown velvet rosette as a try swain might pin up his haying hat. The rim appeared to be double and the upper thickness was frayed out about an inch so as to leave a rough fringe of straw. One should be young and pretty to stand this hat.

A charming gown of wool and silk mixture of sage-green, with stripes of drawn work filled in with pink, is made with bodice bouffant in the front under a sage velvet Turkish jacket, square in front and having sleeve caps. The jacket is edged with drop fringe. The skirt has a plain facing of velvet on the

A PERFECT POEM.

Whether anything will replace it in hot weather it is too early yet to say. But here is a gown without it. It is of silk, cool, greenish-gray in the lights and mauve in the shadows like the sea in a mist, and flecked with white and covered with broche discs, beautiful enough to inspire a sonnet. It is trimmed with ruffles of greenish-gray chiffon. Severaloverlapping ruffles are on the skirt and a ruffle round the waist at the height of the bust. There is also a ruffle sewed on the sleeve several inches down from the armhole so that it falls in a line with that round the bodice, giving somewhat the effect of a cape. #### IN A NEWSPAPER'S LIBRARY.

Daily Journals Want Books Filled Only With Hard, Solid Eacts. Perhaps no library is more carefully selected than the working library of a daily newspaper. There is no telling what the next hour will bring forth in the world of news, and yet a newspaper must be prepared to accept everything that comes along., Naturally its library contains books for work, not for show or mental diversion.

For that reason the volumes on the shelves are largely books of reference, biography, history, geography, science, arts and statistics. The selection must cover so much ground that any question submitted can either be answered in a few minutes, or after the further searchings suggested by some printed. searchings suggested by some printed authority in the newspaper library. There is one work, however, that is invaluable to the newspaper man—the Encyclopedia Britannica. No work of reference is handled as often, no other volumes are opened as frequently and volumes are opened as frequently and no other product of the publisher's art is valued as highly as that epitome of the world's knowledge—the Encyclopedia Britannica.

In the twenty-five volumes of the Encyclopedia Britannica the news-paper man has a library which cannot be equaled, so far as practical work is concerned, by any 8000 well-selected books.

In short, the Encyclopedia Britannica is so peculiarly adapted for the news-paper office that it is doubtful if any journal in any English speaking country is without that set of books. This is the work which The Times has been offering its readers for 10 cents a day. This paper goes on the principle that what is best for itself is good for its friends. It knows and thoroughly appreciates the value of the Britannica, and when it ascertained that it could place the full set of twenty-five volumes in the hands of its readers for 10 cents

This greatest of all reference libraries, which you may now obtain for 10 cents a day, will before long be out of your reach.

Today you may become the possessor of the twenty-five volumes in the easi-est possible manner. When the offer is withdrawn you will have to buy the books as others do, for none but readers of THE TIMES are entitled to privieges found in the Encyclopedia propo sition.

Copyright, 1898, by American Press Association.] In response to an interviewer President Cleveland once said: "Oh, you saw that in have known it wasn't true."

On the same day Thomas Byrnes, superintendent of police in New York city, replying to a question, said: "You might have known that wasn't true. You saw it in the newspapers. Whenever you see anything published about me or my affairs you may take it for granted it is untrue."

As a practical newspaper writer I naturally regard with intensest interest every phase of journalism, good and bad. Contemplating possible changes in this greatest of professions made between now and 1998, I naturally examine the data at hand in order that I may intelligently attempt a forerally examine the data at hand in order that I may intelligently attempt a forecast. Some little time since an esteemed coworker in the realm of art, William J. LeMoyne, sent me two tiny volumes written by Samuel Patterson in 1753 and published for him by Joseph Johnson in 1772. They are called "Joinerians, or the Book of Scraps," a series of interesting essays on divers topics, one of which is entitled "News and News Writers."

If Brother Patterson's photograph of the newspapers a hundred years ago is at all accurate, the one and only change in the line of improvement which distinguishes the newspaper press of 1892 from those of a century earlier is in the advanced mechanical facilities at the service of publishers, ical facilities at the service of publishers. They then worked the humble and awk-ward hand press.

Today we have mechanisms so marvelous in their ingenious complication and so simple withal that the ordinary mind stands confused by the output and embarrassed in its vain endeavor to comprehend the why and the wherefore. It must be remembered that of every 100,000 readers at least 99,000 never saw a modern printing press at work.

The grandeur of a pressroom is beyond compare. All is quiet. The electric light brightens the subterapean vaults as though the midday sun in all its glory was effulgent there; huge rolls of paper, miles in extent, are fastened in their place, and the stereotyped plates wait patiently to begin their work of devouring, digesting and apringing forth for the healing of the nations. With the word the machinery starts, and with the rapidity of the lightning's flight the wheels merrily turn, and within the hour that roll of paper, miles in length, has poured into the funnel and over the cylinder and rests now a mighty pile of eight, mathematical precision, pasted and ready mathematical precision, pasted and ready for delivery.

The sight's almost uneanny.

And it has seemed to me at times when looking over the rail I could almost hear these mighty monsters whispering to each other, for they do everything but read.

All this is new.

other, for they do everything but read.

All this is new.

But a brief reference to the pages of "Join eriana" convinces me that nothing else is changed. "Students," says the writer, "of every class may now burn their books, like so much useless lumber, and circumscribe their studies hereafter to the newspaper productions of the press." Even the names of today were anticipated. Gazette, Journal, Ledger, Mercury, Courant, Chronicle and the like are among them.

According to the writer, fifty years or seventy years before his time "news writers or sober journalists were mere abstractors seventy years before his time "news writers or sober journalists were mere abstractors and brief chroniclers of the time," but when this was written the author says, "We commonly discover him a curious impertinent, watching the heels of the great, more intent upon their motions than their measures, giving the earliest notice when his lordship stole out of town, and also when her ladyship was happily delivered to the great joy of that noble family."

Obviously newspapers of the then and newspapers of the now are as like as two peas in a single pod.

peas in a single pod.

"Newspapers," continues our author, "as they have been carried on of late years are a standing reproach to the nation. Every species of guilt, every mode of extravagance, every method of gambling and every possible way of subverting order and setting the laws at deflance are daily intimated, comforted and propagated by our news writers."

Just so here.

Within the past ten years there has grown a habit in some of our most influengrown a habit in some of our most influential journals of private prosecution which has developed into individual persecution of the most inhuman type. We have officers of the law whose duty it is to detect crime, arrest, try and punish criminals, but certain newspapers, instigated thereto by hope of gain, have taken it upon themselves to ferret out every particle of evidence and to make it impossible for an accused man to have a fair chance in a modern court of justice. Judges are browheaten, lawyers are intimidated and jurors find their footsteps dogged by spacework scribblers and the literal sanctity of their own domesticity intruded upon and spied upon by sneak reporters.

Was it so then?

Read and ponder. Says the author:

"Errors in conduct were condemned formerly as now, but the delinquent was not left hopeless. His future virtues might repair his past indiscretions. At present the error, magnified and tortured by misrepresentation, is irreparable. He is held up in scorn and derision. Those that go by shake their heads and make mouths at him. A paper without murders and robberies and rapes and incest and bestiality and sodomy and sacrilege and incendiary letters and forgeries and executions and duels and suicides is said to be void of news. Newspapers are no longer what news. Newspapers are no longer what they were originally intended to be, chronicles of events, but firebrands which it behoves every honest man to quench."

And so on and on and on.

In other words, I find absolutely no data cutside of the company from the sterce-

In other words, I find absolutely no data outside of the composing room, the stereotype room and the pressroom on which to formulate any forecast whatever. It's a somewhat remarkable fact that human nature has never changed. The first family, so far as recorded history shows, exhibited in the garden of Eden every passion known to the present race. Love, hate, jealoury, cruelty, murder, envy, curlosity, disobedience characterized the ongoing of Adam and Ere, Cain, Abel and the rest. We wear a different style of garment externally, but the heart remains the same. Journalism in its earner period, in its Edenic state, was precisely as it is today, so far as material goes, so far as it sought to influence manified is concerned differing only in its externalities, its paper, its type, its presswork and the machinery by which this magnificent transformation has been effected. This is an age of electricity.

It is not too much to predict that are another decade has past electricity will be the prime motor directing the great mechanisms of the world. Twenty years ago a 4-cylinder press was a marvel. Look at the wonderful instruments at the beck and call of capital today, and as in a quarter of century these marvelous improvements have been effected, so wonderful indeed as to afford no possible basis of contrast or comparison with the ficilities at the hand of our brothers of a hundred years ago, so in this restless time, when years are crowded into months and months into days, when every nerve is strained and every muscle swells that the wild rush for wealth and power may be maintained, it is not unreasonable to predict still greater changes in the physical complements of a well furnished daily newspaper establishment.

But the rest?

Ah, the rest remains with him who for his own wise purpose started and has carried along with infinite mercy and wonder ful forbearance this extraordinary race of mankind. So long as men are built as they are today mentally, morally and physically human nature cannot change, and until human nature cannot change, and until human nature changes the outwork, the output, campet be expected to alter. Would you expect to pluck figs from thistice or find the juicy grape on the bending boughs of a royal oak? Our mental equipments are as they are, steered in every human individual by passions divinely implanted and divinely permitted if not divinely encouraged.

Changes in journalism?

I fail to see the sign.

How is it with thee, my brother?

JOSEPH HOWARD, JR.

Rafael Joseffy on Musical Development.

[From Our New York Correspondent.]

Rafael Joseffy is regarded by musicians as the greatest planist now living in America and one of the greatest the world has ever seen. Mr. Joseffy has been in poor health for a year or two, so that he has been unable to appear in public concerts. In speaking of the future of musical development he said:

I do not believe that in the next century any greater planists will be heard than any greater planists will be heard than some of those who have lived in the Nine-teenth century. It would be impossible to master that noble instrument to any greatmaster that noble instrument to any greater extent than some of the men who have gained immortality by such achievement have done. The Nineteenth century has been the era of the triumph of the piano.

But it is wholly possible that there may come mechanical improvements which will make it possible to exceed the victories of some of the great pianists of this era. Everybody knows that if it was possible to secure some of the great pianists of this era. Every-body knows that if it were possible to secure a greater division of the scale than is now ob-tained upon pianos there might be some as-tonishing and delightful triumphs. But such a discovery would revolutionize music. The mechanical improvements in the piano have already been wonderful. Every pi-anist, however, has at times realized some of the still unconcurrently mechanical difficulthe still unconquerable mechanical difficul-ties of the instrument, and perhaps the greater triumphs of the greater pianists have been the overcoming of these difficul-

The future of music in the United States is assured. It is going to be a great music loving nation, as it even is today, but it is to be an appreciative and understanding love. I shall not be at all surprised if in the next century the United States stands in the same relation to music which Gen.

the next century the United States stands in the same relation to music which Germany has had for the past 200 years. There will be great composers, great artists, great singers, who will receive a most generous support from the peeple.

Even in my own experience the strides of musical development have been prodigious in this country. If they keep on it will be a nation in which exquisite melody and glorious harmony will express the artistic truth that is in music to a people capable of comprehending it. Yes, I think that the United States in the next century will be the greatest music loving and music producing nation on earth,

Legal Profession.

In my opinion there are to be witnessed in the next century some very striking shanges in the relation of the legal profes in the next century some very striking changes in the relation of the legal profession to its clients and to some extent in the practice of law. Since I have been at the har I have noticed the growth of the tendency to divide the practice of law into specialties. It is not so very long ago that every lawyer accepted all sorts of practice. There of course always have been lawyers who have been known and identified as criminal lawyers as distinguished from practitioners who have confined their practice to the civil branches of the law.

I do not refer, however, to that kind of specialty practice. What I mean is that I think early in the next century it will be found that pretty generally throughout the United States lawyers will, by special study in one or another of the branches of civil law, attract to their offices only that sort of practice involved in the branch of which they have made a study. They will become specialists. This is now true to some extent of lawyers in New York city and some of the other great cities of the land.

Now this segregation, so to speak, is bound to continue more and more, so that in the next century I suspect that what we now know as an all around lawyer will be a very rara avis.

There is another thing which is going to a very rara avis. There is another thing have an enormous influence in changing the methods of the bar of this country. The facility of communication between the rural sections and the larger cities is probably going to be so greatly increased that in the next century almost every community or town will be within speaking distance of the greater cities.

town will be within speaking distance of the greater cities.

Distances will be obliterated, and I suspect as a result the old fashloned country lawyer, the man who has done everything from drawing a deed and a will to defending a criminal in the local courts, will become very largely a tradition. Facility of communication will take those who have legal business to the cities, and for that reason I expect to see the number of lawyers in the cities proportionately greater than is now the case, while the number of country lawyers will be proportionately less. There will in fact be no country lawyers.

I do not think that the rewards which the ablest practitioners in the next century will gain will be any larger than have been some of those earned in the past thirty years. As the number of specialists, and able specialists, too, in the practice of law increases, necessarily the business which has been in my time, for instance, altianed by the free great specialists will be considued. by the few great specialists will be considerably divided up. There will be more able specialists—a great many more than there are today.

For that reason there will not be so many

For that reason there will not be so many examples of predigious individual earnings, but I suspect that the lads of today who will be ready to practice law through out the first helf of the next century will average more earnings than the same number of lads who began the practice of law, say, thirty odd years ago, and I am inclined to think that the achievements of the bar of the Twentieth century will probably exceed, on the whole, in brilliancy those of the bar of the Nineteenth. There are some great questions coming up which we now only vaguely perceive, and these will be determined very largely through the influence of the bar, just as the constitutional questions of the present century have been settled by the American bar.

A. DITTENHOEFER.

[From Our New York Correspondent.]

Mr. George F. Kuns, who is regarded as perhaps the best authority in America on precious stones, and whose familiarity with the gems of the United States and the gem mines is unexcelled, said in reference to the production of gems in this country: "I am inclined to think that the opal mines of the state, of Washington and the turquoise mines in New Mexico are going to produce gems equal to the opals found in the Ural mountains and to the turquoise of Persia. Already they have taken from the New Mexican mines a turquoise which is as fine as anything that Persian mines have yielded, and some of the spals from Washington are certainly very beautiful gems.

"But I thick in the near future last me are going to see a wonderful development in the use of jewels in American churches. The tendency has already set in that direction. In one of the churches of the west there are jewels used by the priest in his offices worth many thousands of dollars. The bishop of Long Island, the bishop of Springfield, have received costly jewels which they wear in performing their offices, and in two of the churches in New York there are adornments of precious stones which represent a great deal of money.

"My impression is that in the next censury it will be found that in many of the churches in the United States jewels of reare beauty and great cost will serve the priests for the greater adornment of their chancels and their vestments. We shall, I think, equal if not exceed the use of jewels as an accessory for the priestly offices which has characterized some of the churches of the European continent. Preclous stones, beautiful martles, will more and more be utilized for impressive religious ceremony."

Benator Voorhees Thinks We Have Reached the Golden Mean.

[From Our Washington Correspondent.] "In my judgment," said Senator Voorhees, of Indiana, "the next 100 years will show but slight changes in the form of our government. A century hence I should expect to see, were I upon earth, the American republic governed very much as it is at the present day. Some minor changes are altogether probable. Among these I should think quite likely a limit of the presidential term to six years and no re-election and a change in the manner of choosing the president and vice president. But these are subsidiary merely and will not affect the structure of our government. "I take it that the American people decided at the recent election against any further centralization of power in this country. For instance, I believe they have decided there shall be no federal control of elections within the states. This decision, if I am right in assuming the election means that, has greater significance than most neonle attach to it.

means that, has greater significance than most people attach to it. "The significance is that the limits of our

"The significance is that the limits of our federal powers are now pretty well defined; that the people do not wish them to be either circumscribed or greatly enlarged. For this reason I believe the government will go through another century substantially as it is at the present day. We apparently have reached that golden mean between two possible extremes, and to me the lesson of the election is that the people will jealously watch every effort made to shift the balance in one direction or the other.

"A hundred years hence this country will "A hundred years hence this country will probably have a system of customs taxation that will approximate as closely to free trade as anything which the world now knows. I believe we shall always have custom houses and that there will always be tariffs for them to collect. But a century hence I should be very much surprised to return to earth and find such a system of taxation as we now have. We shall approach our ultimate approximation to free trade very slowly and cautiously and in such manner as to cause no violent injusin such manner as to cause no violent injustice to any interest.
"Within the life of the man now g

"Within the life of the man now grown the changes may be considerable, but they will not be revolutionary. Within the present generation I look to see a considerable part of the money needed for our government raised by means of an income tax. I believe the day is fast approaching in which our people will insist upon taxing the property and the prosperity of the country—not its necessities."

Commodore Van Santvoord on Inland Navigation. [From Our New York Correspon

Commodore Abram Van Santvoord is the heir of Robert Fulton and is probably the best informed man on American steam-boating in the United States. He is the owner of the successed of the original line of steamboats which Robert Fulton estab-lished. Commodore Van Santvoord said: "I do not believe that Fulton's invention of the paddle wheel will ever be improved for inland navigation. There may be some im-provements in minor details, but the prin-ciple of the paddle wheel will remain suremen.

"I am inclined to think, however, that it may be possible in the next century to go from New York to Chicago or Duluth, and possibly from New York to New Orleans, by inland waterways by steamboat. If a ship canal is cut across New York state, and it is entirely within the bounds of probability that this will be done early in the next century, and another is cut from Chicago to the Mississippi, then it will be possible to make this trip by steamboat. The probabilities, however, are that navigation of this sort will be made by screw propellers for the most part rather than by the side wheel boat.

"I think the development of an inland marine is going to be something prodigious

It is now again attracting the attention of the great capitalists. The tonnage through the ship canal at Sault Ste. Marie has been the great-canal at Sault Ste. Marie has been the greatest in the world, and that canal has been enlarged only within recent years.

"We shall find the solution to some of the railway problems in the development of this inland marine, and if the greater canals are dug, which capitalists even now are considering, in the Twentieth century those who then live are going to see almost as enormous a system of inland merchant marine as are the railway systems which control the great trunk lines."

Care of the Hair.

Long hair should never be shampooed more than once a month. Some people think that by brushing and caring well for the hair a shampoo once a year is sufficient, but few people, especially those whose half is naturally oily, believe in this advice. Brushing stimulates the growth of the hair and makes it glossy and soft. It also stops the hair from falling out and is the best tonic for the scalp. For shampoo nothing is any better than plenty of tar soap, and hot water. It is better than castile even and makes a fine soft lather. A little borax or a tablespoonful of ammonia in the water is also good for oily hair, but too much of either turns the hair gray. Any head of hair, no matter how coarse or thin, can be greatly improved by proper care and attending the state of the stat Long hair should never be shampooe greatly improved by proper care and attention.—Buffalo News.

A Writer Who Blames Women

A Writer Who Blames Women.

A well known man writer who describes woman as a study in "tears and talons" and a most "cleverly cruel animal" chivalrously lays all the blame of her baseness upon man's broad shoulders. "Among women," he says, "centuries of seeing man's selection pass them by for some more favored maiden has implanted a peculiar spite. From unremembered times the fortunate have not forborne from casting back on their unsuccessful sisters the eye of triumph and the chuckle of contempt. "Ages of this founded a fresh cruelty, and there was gradually arrayed, both against man and woman, the hatred of the unasked, the hatred of the too little loved, the cruelty of the plain and the cruelty of the beautiful."

The same offer is made to all new three-months' mail subscribers to the DALLY TIMES paying $2.25 in advance, and to all old subscribers renewing on the same terms. This unique offer embraces every variety of seeds: Sweet Corn, Melons, Pumpkins, Squashes, Peas, Beans, all kinds of Vegetables, etc., etc. We are enabled to make this most generous offer by reason of having purchased the seeds in immense job-lot quantities. We are building for the future, and have determined to greatly extend the already large circulation of our weekly edition, and stand this heavy expense, not for love or charity's sake but as a matter of business, to attract a permanent patronage.

The Paper Better Than Ever!

A department particularly adapted to the peculiar character of our Southern California agricultural and horticultural interests, carefully prepared by a practical and educated farmer, will, in the future, be a valuable feature of the SATUMDAY TIMES AND WERKLY-MIRROR, and will also appear in the daily issue each Saturday. A Southern California News Page is also published weekly. These features, with the variety, reliability and general excellence of the other departments, render this paper infinitely superior as a general family newspaper to any weekly publication in the Southwest.

How to Obtain the Seeds.

Accompany your remittance and order for the paper with a plainly written list of the number of packages of each kind of seed you desire remembering that twelve packages is the limit with a single order. For postage and packing we cannot pay. It will cost you 10 cents extra, which is to be added to the amount of your remittance.

SUMMARY: Never before has there been offered to the public a book of reference approaching this in completeness, compactness, or cheapness. It contains 720 pages of encyclopedic information concerning all branches of knowledge, comprising in a condensed form, stripped of unnecessary verbiage, the very cream of the Encyclopedia Britannica and the latest edition or Chambers's Encyclopedia, with the addition of a great many American subjects found in neither of the larger encyclopedias. Besides being a comprehensive gazet eer of universal knowledge, it is also a complete Atlas of the World, containing eighty full-page maps. Some idea may be gained of the magnitude of this wonderful work and the vast number of subjects treated of, from the following figures: Number of pages, 700; total number of lines, 20,080; total number of words, 1,700,000; number of subjects. 18,000; total length of columns in inches, 21,000; number of words for one cent, 3500. If the columns were placed end to end they would reach over one-third of a mile. Just think of 1800 ieet of choice reading, compiled from the latest sources on 18,000 subjects of daily interest to everybody, for a sum per word that requires five figures to express the fraction, and 80 Fainpage Maps. Free, the whole forming the largest, latest and most complete Family Encyclopedia ever produced. The maps are corrected to date and beautifully colored by our celebrated patent plate process, to distinguish States and political boundaries. The ordinary price of an allas alone, containing these maps, would be at least as much as is asked for this entire book, of which they form but a sincle feature. your ever lasting questions, Alice. I am not in the most indulgent or amiable of moods tonight, young lady, as you may chance to find out if you are not pretty "I am very sorry you don't feel kindly help yourself!"

He took up the flaring light and went up stairs to the room he occupied as "gen-tleman boarder" for the shooting season, eaving Alice a still picture of white, mo onless despair.
"He cannot mean it! Oh, no, no! He ever, never can mean it!" broke in inco-erent syllables from her cold lips as she clasped her hands tightly together in the Meanwhile Horace Calthorpe, in his own apartment, was quietly packing down one or two indispensable articles into a small valise, the lamplight streaming redly on a face that bore somewhat of demoniac exulation on its faultlessly handsome features "The evil one's own luck," he muttered to himself, hurriedly turning over a bundle of papers. "The certificate here in my own hand—the old minister dead—the only wit-ness killed before Wilmington. The mo-mentary fancy had like to have cost me dear. But it's all over now. I can go back to New York and win my way once mor into Virginia's good graces. Broadway an an heiress are certainly my natural elements. I wonder if I can catch the 10 o'clock hight express at Paudington. It's a long walk, but I think I might manage it."

"Upon the whole, my dear, I think it altogether the best thing you could have done. Grovedale is dull. There's no denying that, and since it's absolutely nece ry for you to earn a living New the place to do it in.

the place to do it in."

Alice Calthorpe sat by the window wondering vaguely if she should ever become used to the ceaseless thunder of omnibus, cart and carriage, or if the heavy, vaporous smoke would ever change to a blue, delicions atmosphere like that which hung over the mountains of Grovedale. And all the time, close to her beating heart, lay the one thing dear to her new life—the scrap of torn, uncompleted lettelife—the scrap of torn, uncompleted letter, with "Virginia Clevington" carelessly pen-ciled again and again on the margin.

Virginia Clevington! Some unmistak-able instinct in her woman's heart told her that this was the rival who had stolen away her husband—perhaps unconsciously. Virginia Clevington she would find, though ahe perished in the search.

"And what are you going to do, my dear?" questioned the good Grovedale neighbor, who was now thoroughly domiciled in the great throbbing heart of New "I heard of a capital chance only yesterday. Would you object to bein a kind o' companion? Not exactly lady's maid, but more exclusive like? For," went on the worthy woman, "Miss Clevington's dressmaker was here to tea last night, and she Clevington-Miss Clevington?"

"Clevington—Miss Clevington?"
Alice was attentive enough now. She had risen to her feet with white, sickly eagerness, clinging to Mrs. Truman's hand as a shipwrecked mariner clings to a floating drift of seaweed.

"Yes, do you know her?"
"I have heard of her. Yes, I have heard of her. I should like to be Miss Clevington's companion. Where does she live?
Let us go to her at once!"

Virginia Clevington had just come in from a drive—come in with checks tinted like a ripe peach, and her brown hair tossed about by the fresh wind, and stood there, with the little gloves half pulled from her fairy fingers, a lovely picture of girlish beauty in its prime.

Yet no more beautiful to look at than the pale girl who was sewing in the shadow of the emerald silk curtains. Only over one had swept the equinoctial tempests of life's sharpest grief, while the other knew but calm and sunshine.

"You're tired, Alice, dear," said Virginia Clevington softly. "Put by your work—rest a little while."

It was a part of her benign nature to be weet and tender to all created belong her.

It was a part of her benign nature to be sweet and tender to all created beings, but to Alice the words of sympathy were inex-pressibly grateful. She dropped her head on Virginia's sooth-ing hand and burst into tears.

"It is only the sharp pain at my heart," ground poor Alice. "Oh, Miss Clevington, may I tell you the story of my life? Then perhaps you will not do se weak and maciful when I give way to these foolish bursts of grief."

"Tail me," whispered Virginia, kneeling at her pale companion's side, "tell me all."

"But if it should bring a sharp pang to your heart, Miss Clevington!"

"I cannot imagine how it should do so."

Alice hesitated a moment, with the white and red fluttering like wind stirred banners across her check.

"Miss Clevington," she said, "the surscen's hand should not hesitate to probe the hidden wounds. I will not faiter longer. Is it true that you are to be married to Horne Calthorpe next month?"

"Yes, it is true."

The afternoon sunshine faded into purple bright starbeams—and yet virginia Clevington knelt there listening to Alice's soft, measured tones. Which of those two worsen suffered most would be difficult to tell. It was like the bitterness of death to both. "I am late tonight, I know, mis cara," said Horace Calthorpe caresangly as he laid his hat and gleves on the center table and put his arm round Virginia's slight waist, "but indeed it was the fault of unavoidable business."

"What! Shrinking away from me, love? Surely so slight a fault should not be vis-Surely so slight a fault should not be visited by penance like that. Let me seal my forgiveness on your lips, my darling."

"Never again, Horace Calthrope! You have proved yourself a villain and a hypocrite!"

"Virginia!" But she went on, with flushed cheeks and

But she went on, with flushed cheeks and sparkling eyes:
"Horace Calthorpe, how dared you aspire to my hand when your wife—your wife in the sight of God and man—was pining away, unacknowledged and forgotten."
"My wife! Decreat Virginia, some impostor has been practicing on your credulity. I have no wife—I never had one."
For answer Virginia Clevington parted the azure folds of her heavy silken curtains and revealed a slight figure in the deep embraure—Alice—whiter than any sculptured stone!

Horace elevated his handsome eyebrows.
"I don't deny that I may have flirted with that young woman at times while I was ruralizing among the mountains up north, but as for her being my wife that's simply ridiculous. Let her prove it if she can." Virginia Clevington, pale and resolute, opened the folding doors that led into a lit-

"Mr. Wayne, your evidence is needed to decide this matter."

Had a corpse arisen from its winding sheet, Horace Calthorpe could not have been more astounded or bewildered than at the sight of the represable clergyman who had sight of the venerable clergyman who had performed the marriage service between himself and Alice Wyman. "Wayne!" he stammered, "Wayne! I thought Mr. Wayne was dead."

thought Mr. Wayne was dead."
"Not dead," returned the silver haired old man, "but spared by a merciful Providence to protect the threatened future of this young girl. Miss Clevington, you have had young girl. Miss clearing on, you have not all into no more such temptation."

Meanwhile Alice had advanced to con-

English Country House Dances. A flavor of old world heartiness and grace still lingers over the entertainments and dances given in country houses—a charm which is lacking to the more sought after amusements of the same character in London. Many a watchful eye has of late been directed against the social sins of the capi-tal, but hitherto these critics have not proclaimed that country house life and its dissipations are eating into our social system. That these dances are more enjoyable than London balls is true for very simple reasons. The success lies in a willingness to be amused, sufficient leisure to enjoy the amusement and a due allowance of space and air in which to dance. We are apt to forget that, though society may submit at times to stand packed tightly together like herrings in a barrel and is willing to try and think it amusing for an hour or two, we cannot expect to see a dance going with on the floor allotted to the dancers.

Supper to be enjoyed must be earned by a process which the tiller of the soil is supposed to know, and this can only be done when the dance has opened at 10 and has roostbly trained at 10. possibly included a reel lasting not less than 20 minutes, while the "Kitchen Lancers" have been executed in a style becoming their name. How the sight of such traves ties on the figures they invented and exe-cuted with such measured and stately re-pose would pain our worthy ancestors! In these matters it is well to admit that fash is best when danced, as originally intended with dignity and repose, and that when the romping element is introduced into the figdo not show to such advantage.-London Saturday Review.

Feared Being Buried Alive.

The most peculiar and eccentric character that ever lived in Alabama was Thomas Banks, who died at Montgomery some time during the year 1890. Physicians say that continually brooding over the danger of be-ing buried alive. He was a man of considerable property, being rated at about $200,-000, but to his way of looking at the matter money could not provide against the horrors of a premature burial. Away back in the seventies he had a mausoleum built in the Montgomery cemetery and directed that he and his only brother should be laid there together after death.

In 1889 the brother died and was carefully and tenderly laid away in one of the niches of the mausoleum. After this solemn event Thomas had his bedroom furniture moved to the tomb and ever after reg-ularly made his tollet there. Thomas also died in 1890, and now the two brothers lie within handy reach of fresh air should either wake from his dreamless sleep.—St. Louis Republic.

The Best Tobacco Pouch.

The Best Tobacco Pouch.

The best tobacco bags are made not of leather or rubber, but of the pouch of a pelican. The monstrous membrane which fills out the lower bill of the pelican is soft and thin, of very fine texture, easily tanned and when dressed makes a beautiful article of leather, possessing the quality of being as impervious to water as india rubber. Tobacco kept in it will never become dry. but retains its sweetness and aroma even longer than when preserved in tin foil. In the southern seaboard states its value is well understood, and tobacco pouches made of it are very common.—St. Louis Globa-Demograf.

The Value of Kindness,

The Value of Kindness.

We have all read of the lucky lady who was left a large fortune by the elderly gentleman to whom she showed kindness when he was seized with faintness or some vertiginous attack as he was watching the debutantes wending their way to Buckingham palace. History of all kinds repeats itself. Thackeray, in his "Sketches and Travels In London," tells the tale of a gentleman who, when a crowd of young bucks and bloods in the crushroom of the opera were laughing and elbowing an old lady there—lonely, ugly and unprotected—went up to her respectfully and offered her his arm, took her down to his own carriage, which was in waiting, and walked home simself in the rain—and 20 years afterward had $50,000 a year left him by this very old lady as a reward for that one act of politeness,—London World.

A Lenient Pawnshop.

The Monta di Pieta at Rome, which has existed ever since 1885, is probably the most lenient pawnbroker's shop in the world. Any person who brings a pledge may borrow from its to £5 without paying any interest, but all that is lent above that sum is paid for at the rate of 2 per cent per annum. At the and of two years, if the pledge is not redeemed nor interest of the money paid, it is sold and the overplus of the debt is laid by for the owner, who has it in his power to demand it within 100 years.—Yankee Blads.

OFFICE OF THE TIMES. Los Angeles, April 4, 1893, Vegetables in San Francisco were active this morning. The receipts included asparagus, rubharb, peas, mushrooms, cucumbers and new potatoes, and the market for the latter was very firm with higher prices Prices for fruits are steady. The poultry market was easier. Butter was very weak for all kinds, and eggs were also weak. Chicago exchanges were closed today or account of the city election.

New York Stocks New York, April 4.--The stock market was less active than of late and a lower range of prices prevailed. Manhattan broke 4½ points to 160½ on reiteration of the reports that powerful capitalists pro-fessed willingness to advance capital necesfessed willingness to advance capital necessary to insure the success of an underground road, provided they receive suitable concessions from the city authorities. The identity of the capitalists is not yet divulged, but the general impression is that Austin Corbin is behind the scheme. The bears made a number of raids on industrials and some of the general list, but a late raily pulled most of them up again. Government bonds were firm.
